FURTHER SPREAD OF EPIDEMIC IS DECLARED ENDED

United States Health Service Gives Cheering Intelligence to Public But Without Particulars—State Finds a Case in Town of Middletown—Precautions in Manhattan.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, July 20.—The United States Public Health Service this afternoon announced that danger of a further spread of infantile paralysis has passed. Health officials said the situation is now entirely under control and that within a few days the epidemic will subside, even in New York city, the principal place where the disease has existed.

Case in Delaware County.

Albany, July 20.—One case of infantile paralysis has been discovered in Fleischmanns village, Delaware county, according to reports reaching the state department of health today. In the boarding house where the child was stricken are 40 other children. The department has issued orders to quarantine everybody in the house to prevent the spread of the disease.

The other new cases reported today make a total of 170 in the state outside Greater New York. The cases reported today were from New Rochelle and Armont, Westchester county; Nyack, Rockland; the town of Fallsburgh, Sullivan county; Glen Cove, Nassau county; two at Poughkeepsie, one at Elmont and one at East Meadow, town of East Hempstead, Nassau county.

It was announced that nurses from the state department are today visiting all of the quarantined points on both sides of the river between New York and Albany to ascertain if the quarantine rules are being enforced. The nurses will make a report to the department at once.

New York, July 20.—An increase of one in the number of deaths from infantile paralysis in the last 24 hours as compared with the previous 24 hours was reported today. The number of cases, however, decreased. The total number of cases reported today was 119, as compared with 142 for the previous 24 hours, and the number of deaths, 31, as compared with 30; the previous day's record.

Federal and city authorities began new precautions today to check the spread of the epidemic. They increased the watchfulness at ferries and railroad stations and only those children who could show that they have not the disease and have not been exposed to it were allowed to leave the city.

REPRISALS AIMED AGAINST GERMANS

By Telegraph to The Freeman

Rome, July 20.—During the last twenty-four hours Italian-German relations have become more strained. The Messagero state today that there is imminent the issuance of a royal decree containing reprisal methods to be used against German subjects.

This decree, which was prepared by Foreign Minister Sennino and two associates, will extend to alien enemies of Italy and her allies every measure adopted against Austrian subjects.

The first section prohibits every transfer of property; the second prohibits recourse to the courts; the third authorizes the government to adopt additional reprisal methods against aliens who are foes either of Italy or her allies.

Future relations between Germany and Italy will depend upon how the latter country meets this decree.

LOVE TRIANGLE'S PHASES PUZZLING

Woman Osteopath's Death Now Believed a Part of Suicide Pact—Brother Denounces Betrayal Story as Effort to Dodge Electric Chair.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Boston, Mass, July 20.—A theory that Dr. Celia Paine Adams, the Brookline osteopath and central figure in Boston's amazing love triangle, may have died in a suicide pact came today to add to the perplexing features which have made the whole case the most remarkable in Massachusetts police annals.

That a mysterious poison, not morphine alone, caused her death, is the police conviction, following Medical Examiner MacGrath's announcement of the result of his autopsy.

The internal organs taken from the young woman's body have been sent to an expert for analysis to determine the nature of the poison.

Dr. Clifford D. Harvey, the physician first called in after Miss Adams had been found unconscious, thinks it very possible that she was the victim in a suicide pact.

The police began a dozen inquiries along as many different lines today in the hope of throwing some light on the strange and puzzling case.

Meanwhile Dr. Harris, Atwood's victim, lay in a critical condition at the city hospital. The physicians reported him resting comfortably, however, with a slight chance to recover.

Winthrop Adams, brother of the dead woman, asserts that Atwood's alleged confession as to Dr. Harris having betrayed his sister is nothing but a "cowardly and dastardly prevarication, trumped up to pave his way for public sympathy and a later possible temporary insanity plea to save himself from the electric chair."

BABY'S CLOTHES SOLD TO BUY MILK

Mrs. Arthur Schumaker Tells of Brutal Treatment From Husband, Latter Directed to Pay $7 a Week to Family.

Selling the baby's clothes as rags in order to get money with which to buy the child milk and to procure bread for the other five children was the burden of a pathetic tale told by Mrs. Arthur Schumaker of No. 89 Newkirk avenue, on the witness stand in recorder's court before Recorder Lang this morning. With her family half starved from lack of money to purchase food for them she was forced to have her husband arrested Wednesday on a charge of non-support.

The trial was adjourned until this morning when Schumaker appeared in court accompanied by Charles W. Deyo, whom he had retained as his counsel. William H. Grogan represented the wife. At the close of the trial Recorder Lang found Schumaker guilty and directed him to pay $7 a week toward the support of his wife. He also directed that Schumaker furnish a bond in the sum of $300, and in default to be committed to the county jail for six months.

Mrs. Schumaker in telling her story on the witness stand said she had married her husband twelve years ago, and had had eight children, of which number six were living. The oldest is eleven years of age while the youngest is fifteen months old. Her husband has been drinking heavily for some time past, and had given her on an average of about $3 a week from which sum she was supposed to clothe and feed herself and the six children and pay the house rent of $7.50 a month.

Two weeks ago her husband came home and brutally threw her against the door, inflicting a lump at the back of her head. He has also threatened to kill her and she says she is afraid to live with him any more and that if it was not for the kindness of friends in supplying the children with clothing they would be naked.

Several times she has been forced to take some of the clothing and dispose of it as old rags in order to raise a little money to buy a loaf of bread. The other day she got ten cents for some old clothing which she was forced to sell, although it was needed, to buy a pint of milk for the baby. A loaf of bread was bought with the remainder of the dime.

Ever since she has been married she had been forced to skimp and save because her husband did not give her enough money. Last Saturday he gave her a trifle over $2, and at the time he had five or six dollar bills in his pocket she said.

Finally she wrote him a note Tuesday not to come home unless he could come home sober. She also wrote in the note that the rent was due. He sent the note back, writing on the bottom of it in effect, the word "thanks."

After she had received his reply to the note she applied to Mrs. Laura MacMillan of the Bureau of Social Service for aid. On Wednesday morning she applied to Recorder Lang for a warrant.

Husband Denied Story.

Schumaker, on the witness stand in his own behalf, denied his wife's story. He said he earned on an average of $15 a week, and of that amount he gave his wife $9 a week. He could not remember, however, the exact amount he gave her on Saturday or on previous days when questioned by Mr. Grogan.

Wife Willing to Work.

Mrs. Schumaker said that she had made arrangements to go to work in one of the local shirt factories, and that she expected to put three of her children in the Day Nursey on Hasbrouck avenue, and that her mother would come and stay at the house and care for the remaining three children.

Her story of her married life was one of the most pathetic that has been heard in recorder's court in some time. She said she had not wanted to have her husband arrested until his conduct forced her to do so.

SOUTH HAD WARM GREETING FOR 20

Ulster Park Guardsman Writes of Reception Given Soldiers En Route to Texas Border—Houston Folk Threw Key to City Into Well.

Ulster Park, July 20.—The Rev. and Mrs. C. Van Oostenbrugge received word from their son, Horace, a member of Company E, Second Infantry, New York National Guard, that they expected to arrive at their destination, Mission, Texas, Friday evening, July 14. The regiment left Camp Whitman July 7, first going to Washington and then via the Chesapeak & Ohio railroad for the south.

Horace says they had a "dandy trip" all the way. The trains made frequent stops, giving the boys a chance to stretch a leg and take a swim.

At Louisville, Ky., a stop of three hours was made. A committee of Y. M. C. A. men met the boys at the station and escorted them to the Y. M. C. A. building where the swimming pool and baths were placed at their disposal, a luxury which they enjoyed hugely. Every many of the regiment had a first class bath. Then "mess" was served. At 10 p. m. they reentrained feeling in fine fettle. The young ladies supplied the boys with papers, magazines, fans and tobacco. A large number of the citizens were at the station to give the boys a rousing send-off.

A Committee of 600.

At Memphis a citizens' committee and about 600 people were at the station to welcome the Second Regiment when the trains rolled in. They were escorted to the Y. M. C. A. building where swimming pool and shower baths were in readiness for them. Then they partook of a sumptuous dinner, served under the direction of Gen. H. T. Cairness of the men's committee and Mrs. J. M. MacCormack of the women's committee. They were escorted to the station to reentrain and were delighted to find that tourist sleeping cars had been substituted for day coaches. The bands played, regimental and company songs were sung and with rousing cheers Memphis bade the Second Regiment God speed.

Threw City Key in Well.

The final lap of the long trip began at Houston, Texas. Here plans for the entertainment of the "soldier boys" had been made in advance. Houston tried to outdo the other southern cities in the matter of hospitality. What had been done in Louisville and Memphis was repeated in Houston, and then Houston threw the city key in the well and said "The town is yours."

Many of the boys will remember as long as they live their experience of real southern hospitality.

UNDUE INFLUENCE BEFORE RECORDER

"Gilded Finery" and Facial Expressions of Police Interfered with Scales of Justice is Claim of Sebastian Brown's Counsel—Appeals from Conviction and $50 Fine.

Judge Jenkins today allowed an appeal to the county court in the case of the People against Sebastian Brown, who was convicted before Recorder Lang on July 13 of assault in the third degree, on complaint of Policeman James Welch, and was sentenced to pay a fine of $50.

Brown was convicted by a jury after a trial which lasted almost the entire evening. He claims that on the trial before Recorder Lang he was compelled to exhaust all of his challenges of jurors while the prosecution was not and that the prosecution was given an unfair advantage. There are other grounds as to the admission and exclusion of evidence, etc., which Brown claims are errors which were prejudicial to his case, and he complains of the summation of counsel for the prosecution, William H. Grogan, who referred to him as a human shark, a gangster, that his saloon was a place where the youth of our city were gambling and that the defendant lived on the wages of vice; that Mr Grogan repeatedly referred to the defendant as a rough and tough and said he assaulted innocent citizens and insinuated that he was guilty of subornation of perjury by inducing ex-Policeman McGeeney to give false testimony.

Taken altogether, Sebastian Brown's appeal papers are about as ornate a set of papers as have been presented to the court in many years by any defendant seeking an appeal from any judgment of conviction against him, and in addition to the statements summarized above appears the following statement regarding the trial before the recorder:

Gold Braid In Evidence.

"In opening the case for the prosecution it was stated that complainant made the complaint as a private citizen. But during the trial complainant sat by his attorney uniformed, the chief of police sat within the railing clothed in the gilded finery of his official position and facing the jury for the purpose of influencing their decision, a uniformed policeman, Mr William Ryan, stood within a few feet of the jury box and officiously passed water to the jury from time to time and various members of the police force stood without the railing some showing by their facial expression in full view of the jury, their opinion of the worthlessness of the testimony of some of defendant's witnesses

An "Unfair Atmosphere."

"In his summation, counsel for the prosecution challenged the jury to be men, to uphold the police of the city, to choose between this young officer (meaning the complainant), and the defendant, referring to him as a dive keeper, a rough and a tough, and by other opprobious names, all of which the recorder permitted to be done, thereby creating an atmosphere unfair to defendant and prejudicial to his rights, denying him a fair trial, and tending to secure his conviction by prejudice rather than by the weight of the evidence."

Chris J Flannagan is attorney for Brown with Frank W. Brooks, of counsel.

PROTESTS FLOOD WHITE HOUSE ON BRITISH BOYCOTT

Opening Gun of Relentless Trade War to be Waged by Entente Allies Perplexing to Official Washington—Peace Negotiations Near at Hand is Belief.

Washington, July 20.—A flood of protests from all parts of the United States against the British boycott was pouring in upon the White House and the state department today. The action of Great Britain in making public a general list of American firms who have been boycotted because they "trade with England's enemies" has aroused public sentiment and demands for retaliatory legislation were reaching here from various commercial organizations and individuals affected.

The state department is planning action. It must wait, officials say, a "reasonable time" for official notification of Great Britain's action. If that is not forthcoming a direct inquiry will be made at London. Meanwhile acting Secretary of State Polk is looking into the international law bearing on the subject. It is expected that after all of the facts are compiled he will take the matter up with President Wilson before framing the planned protest.

Officials very frankly say that the making public of this boycott list is, in their opinion, the opening gun in what likely will prove a relentless trade war against all neutrals who have refused to accept without protest the restrictions placed upon commerce by the Entente Allies.

They point to the fact that the present boycott list was prepared by the British board of trade and that it has been operative for more than a year, although only just now made public, as indicating that the measure is one planned by British exporters and manufacturers to regain their trade lost by the war. The making public of the list now, officials believe, was in anticipation that at the end of the present great drives on the east and west front peace negotiations will assume definite form

While officials are discussing retaliatory legislation no plans yet have been framed from such action. It is admitted that the task is a knotty one and the federal trade commission and the department of commerce will be expected to act. An investigation now is being made into one phase of the situation that may lend itself to American use in an effort to enforce a change in tactics.

The bureau of navigation and the state department now are examining the shipping laws to see whether it will not be possible to refuse clearances to steamships which refuse to accept shipments from American firms blacklisted by Great Britian to South American and other neutral points. If it is possible to put such a program into effect officials say that it probably will be done. Up to the present, however, no law which seems to grant such authority has been discovered.

Officials admit that the present situation is very dangerous. The United States, they say, will have to fight to retain its present trade even before the present European war ends and the next few months are certain to be very important to this government.

RUSSIAN VICTORY IN TURKISH CITY

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, July 20.—Baiburt, the Turkish city of Asia Minor where the Russians are reported to have gained a signal advantage recently, is the subject of the following war geography bulletin issued by the National Geographic Society from Washington:

"Situated on both banks of the Churuk river, which rises nearby and flows northeast into the Black Sea at Batum after a course of 200 miles, Baiburt was a town of 10,000 inhabitants at the beginning of the war. It owes whatever commercial importance it possesses to the productive agricultural lands in its vicinity and to the fact that the carraige road running from Trebizond to Erzerum passes through it, the latter city lying 50 miles in an airline to the southeast and Trebizond about the same distance to the northwest. Surrounding the town is a fertile plateau having an elevation of nearly a mile above the Black Sea, which would be almost visible to the north were it not for the Pontic range of mountains. Erzingan is 50 miles to the southwest.

"With practically no industries and with only a poor bazaar, Baiburt offers no points of special interest to the traveler. Even the castle which crowns a mass of rocks on the left bank of the Churuk is a crumbling ruin, the relic of days when Armenians and Seljiks ruled this region. But the city is of historic significance as the most westerly point reached by the Russian army under the renowned General Ivan Fedorovich Paskevich in the Russo-Turkish war in 1828-29. The occupation of Baiburt by Gen. Paskevich marked the culmination of a brilliant campaign which in some respects parallels the present westward drive of the Czar's forces. While the Black Sea fleet bombarded and seized Poti, just as Trebizond was occupied many months ago, Paskevich advanced from Tiflis and in the course of a two-seasons' campaign captured Akhalzik and Ardahan, just as Erzerum was forced to yield in the present struggle.

Incentive to Grand Duke.

"The Grand Duke Nicholas, under whose direction the Russian troops are fighting on the Baiburt plateau, has a keen historic incentive in the triumphs associated with the name of Paskevich. This great soldier became an aide-de-camp to his Czar at the age of 18 and when only 23 years old took part in the battle of Austerlitz, having accompanied the Russian expedition sent to aid the Austrians against Napoleon. He was a general officer at the age of 30 and after a distinguished share in the battle of Leipzig he became a lieutenant general.

"The first of his exploits in the battleground where the Grand Duke is now fighting, was his brilliant conduct of the campaign against Persia in the war of 1826, and when, two years later, after the Shah had been forced to sue for peace, Russia began her drive against the Turks, Paskevich was placed in supreme command of the Asia Minor forces. A million rubles, a diamond-mounted sword and the title of Count of Erivan were among the gifts showered upon the soldier who was now a field marshal at the age of 47, having brought his campaign to a close at Baiburt. Two years later Paskevich was created Prince of Warsaw, and was entrusted with the viceroyalty of Poland. Such was the distinguished career of a Russian officer on the Caucasus frontier, and such his Little Father's recognition of his achievements.

"Mamakhatun, mentioned as the scene of a violent night battle at the same time that the Russians were driving the Turks from the heights east of Baiburt, is 30 miles south of the latter city and half way between Erzingan and Erzerum."

The ideal life, the life full of completion haunts us all. We feel the thing we ought to be boating beneath the thing we are.

FOOD SUGGESTIONS.

A pressed meat which will be found appetizing for picnics or luncheons on hot days is prepared as follows: Boil together a pound of round steak and two large pork hocks. When done, mince the meat with a fork but do not put it through the meat chopper as it makes it pasty. Put into a mold and pour over it the liquor in which the meat was cooked.

Salmon With Tomatoes.—Prepare tomato cups by scalding the tomato, remove the skin, then hollow out the form cups, using a sharp teaspoon. Turn upside down to drain and place on ice to keep them firm. Fill with salmon and chopped celery with a good boiled dressing that is highly seasoned.

Prune and Rice Meringue.—Boil and drain one cupful of rice, then add two tablespoonfuls of butter, three of sugar, one well-beaten egg and one teaspoonful of ginger extract. Spread some of this mixture on a platter, cover it with a layer of stewed prunes; continue alternating the layers until all the rice is used. Sprinkle lightly with sugar, and cover with a meringue made of the whites of two eggs, one-half cupful of sugar, and brown in the oven. Serve cold, decorated with whole stewed prunes.

Apricot Tapioca Pudding.—Cover one and a half cupfuls of tapioca with cold water and let it soak for three hours; then drain and add three cupfuls of boiling water, one-half a teaspoonful of salt and one cupful of sugar; cook in a double boiler until transparent. Skin and stone twelve apricots, put them into the bottom of a buttered baking dish, pour over the tapioca mixture and bake in a moderate oven for 20 minutes. Serve hot or cold with sugar and cream.

Pickled Cherries.—Select sound large cherries and to every quart of cherries allow a cupful of the best cider vinegar, two cupfuls of sugar, one stick of cinnamon, broken in bits; a blade of mace and six whole cloves. Pit the cherries, pack them in jars and pour the boiling vinegar and spices over them. Cork and set away; they may be used almost immediately.

Great Question Concerning Work.

One of the worst of chronic human evils is working for daily bread without any interest in the work, and with ill will toward the institution or person who provides the work. The work of the world must be done, and the great question is, Shall it be done happily or unhappily?—Charles W. Eliot.

ENGLISH SPARROW

Passer domesticus

Length, about six and one-fourth inches. Its incessant chattering, quarrelsome disposition, and abundance and familiarity about human habitations distinguish it from our native sparrows.

Range: Resident throughout the United States and southern Canada.

Habits and economic status: Almost universally condemned since its introduction into the United States, the English sparrow has not only held its own, but has ever increased in numbers and extended its range in spite of all opposition. Its habit of driving out or even killing more beneficial species and the defiling of buildings by its droppings and by its own unsightly structures, are serious objections to this sparrow. Moreover, in rural districts, it is destructive to grain, peas, beans, and other vegetables. On the other hand, the bird feeds to some extent on a large number of insect pests, and this fact points to the need of a new investigation of the present economic status of the species, especially as it promises to be of service in holding in check the newly introduced alfalfa weevil, which threatens the alfalfa industry in Utah and neighboring states. In cities most of the food of the English sparrow is waste material secured from the streets.

KINGSTON, N. Y., JULY 20, 1916.

It is reasonably certain that the end of the big war is not far distant. The activity of the Allies shows that at last they have all the men, guns and ammunition they need or can use, and that they are determined to bring the struggle to a quick conclusion. It can hardly be a matter of more than a few months before they have Germany on the run or else shall have demonstrated that they are unable to make the result better from their standpoint than a draw. Just as soon as one of these two things happens peace will come about as suddenly as did the war, since fighting is never continued after either side or both sides have lost all hope of gaining anything by it. No Government can go beyond a certain limit in opposition to the wishes of a vast majority of its constitutents, and the war would not be going on at this moment but for the fact that the populations of all the warring nations have been constantly assured that victory for their armies is certain.

No matter just how the war ends, the effect upon the industries of the United States will be the same. It is calculated that war orders amounting to three billion dollars have been placed here. That business will stop and there will be nothing to replace it. A year ago Herr Waetzold, trade representative of Germany in this country, reported to his Government that these war orders had "become the great means of saving American business institutions from idleness and financial ruin." He gave a list of big American plants which just before the outbreak of the war did not have enough business to keep running even on half time. This is the opinion of an impartial foreign expert, but the facts are not unknown to our own leaders. The other day, Charles E. Hughes wrote: "No intelligent man is deceived by the temporary prosperity due to abnormal conditions, and no one can fail to appreciate the gravity of the problems with which we shall be faced when the war ends." Only President Wilson and his clique of advisers seem to be living in a fool's paradise.

The fact should not be forgotten that the European nations, bitter as they now are toward each other, are going to do business together after the war. Doubtless the terms of peace will provide that the various markets will be open to all on equal terms. It is highly probable that the necessity of raising revenue will cause all the Governments to establish tariffs so high that American manufacturers will not be able to do much exporting. The Underwood tariff, endorsed in the Democratic national platform, has shown by experience that it promotes imports, so that our manufacturers face the prospect of being shut out from foreign markets and having their home market ruined by the "dumping" of cheaply produced foreign goods. Congressman Humphrey of Washington predicted recently that if Democratic tariff and other policies remain on the statute books sixty days after the end of the war we shall have 2,000,000 idle men in this country. Nothing seems more certain, except that it may take more than sixty days for the catastrophe to descend upon us, because of contracts which yet have a while to run. It may be possible by putting the Republicans in power to correct the blunders of the present administration in time to avert, at least in part, the threatening disaster.

It is written that "a little child shall lead them," and while this could hardly have been intended for the Democratic party, it is certain that the labor of little children is leading that organization just now to certain doom upon the rocks of political disaster. The South, which furnishes the bone and sinew of the Democratic majority in Congress, to say nothing of its electoral vote, has gained its great industrial notoriety through the application of the proverb that "Satan finds some mischief still for idle hands to do." To counteract the influence of the Southern devil, the philanthropists on the other side of Mason and Dixon's line have provided all kinds of mills for the manufacture of cotton and have placed no obstacle in the path of ambitious youth anxious to get on a wage-earning basis at as early an age as possible. Certain misguided sentimentalists, or Southern chivalry in industry regards opponents of child labor, have attempted to prevent the employment of immature youth in these Southern institutions, but the legislatures in Georgia and other States in that section have stood by the children and refused passage to reform legislation. President Wilson, however, is just now with the extremists of the labor world and is credited with having demanded of the Southerners that they change front on child labor and pass Federal legislation barring its products from inter-state commerce. The effect of such a law in the South can better be imagined than described. If the President has his way he is bound to lose heavily in industrial centers, but it is hardly to be thought that his party leaders will permit this but at the South.

MOLTEN LAVA SEWER PIPES.

Yankee Idea Found Favor in Hawaii Volcanic Regions.

The making of sewer pipes and bricks of the molten lava from the active volcano Kilauea is advanced as a business proposition by W. S. Townsend, a retired Ohio manufacturer of sewer pipes, who visited the Hawaiian islands recently. The volcano is on the island of Hawaii 32 miles from Hilo, and reached directly by automobile over a smooth road that dips down through a break in the wall of the old crater to the floor of deal lava and thence almost to the brink of the pit of Halemaumau (House of Everlasting Fire) Mr. Townsend declared that, with proper machinery, pipes could be molded from the lava in exactly the same manner as pipes are molded from molten material in foundries. He advanced a plan to erect endless bucket conveyers that would bear the lava out of the pit, the buckets to be made of special material capable of withstanding heat up to 2,000 degrees F. The research work now being carried on under the direction of Professor T. A. Jagger, of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, has proved that the temperature of the molten lake is about 1,800 degrees F. Mr. Townsend expressed the belief that the lava would remain liquid during the way to the molds, which could be placed in a building near the edge of the crater. For the past 10 years the Lava Brick Company, of Honolulu, has been making building bricks from lava rocks. Its plant is located in the district of Kaimuki, where there is a vast out-cropping of lava rocks from ancient volcanic flows. These bricks are grey in color and have been used extensively in the construction of buildings and particularly in sewer, manhole and fireplace work. Mr. Townsend's idea was considered quite unique in Honolulu when made public and has been taken seriously.

P. B. of W. C. T. U., talked to the members about organizing a Y. P. F. B. at New Hurley, but it was thought best to leave it until the next meeting to decide. A very pleasing literary program was rendered in charge of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Hanmer. Nice refreshments consisting of ice cream and cake was served by Mr. and Mrs. Fowler, and all departed for their homes deciding that a very pleasante evening had been spent.

To Clean Paintbrushes.

No matter how hard a paintbrush has become, it can be made as soft and clean as new by simply boiling in water into which has been put a little lye. A little washing powder or soap will do, but it will take longer. The brush should be placed on end and the boiling water should be no deeper than the length of bristles, as the boiling ends will injure the handle. Turpentine will clean paintbrushes, but not after they have become hard.

"Hasn't Bliggins a motor car?" "Yes." "But you always see him walking." "He's too lazy to bother with the motor car."—Washington Star.

"Can your husband drive a car?" asked one feminine subscriber of another. "Drive a car," repeated the wife, with fine scorn. "Why, that man can't even drive a nail."—Baltimore American.

Why Johnny Hesitated.

Johnny stood beside his mother as she made her selection from the huckster's wagon, and the farmer told the boy to take a handful of cherries, but the child shook his head.

"What's the matter? Don't you like them?" asked the huckster.

"Yes," replied Johnny.

"Then go ahead and take some."

Johnny hesitated, whereupon the farmer put a generous handful in the boy's cap. After the farmer had driven on, the mother asked:

"Why didn't you take the cherries when he told you to?"

"'Cause his hand was bigger'n mine."—Christian Register.

A Subtle Reply.

Young Mrs. Cornell was a bride of but a short time. One afternoon she confided to her friends at a pink tea that she was sure her husband never played poker at his club. "How," queried one of the women, "did you find out?" "Oh," explained the young bride, "I met a couple of members of his club the other day and I asked them: 'Can Perry play poker?' They looked thoughtfully for a minute and then answered very sincerely: 'No!'" — Philadelphia Star.

Thinking of Dad, Too.

A young man saying good-by to his sweetheart was leaning on the garden gate.

"I'm going to ask you a favor," the girl said hesitatingly.

"It is already granted," he answered.

"A very great favor," she repeated, as if doubtful of the propriety of saying what it was. "You're sure that you won't think it presumptuous or forward of me?"

"Never," he assured her. "Only tell me what I can do for you."

"Well," she replied, "would you mind not leaning on that gate. Father painted it this afternoon, and he will be awful provoked if he has to paint it again."—Chicago Journal.

Subordinated Ego.

"Are you afraid of war?" sneered the aggressive citizen.

"No," replied the cautious person. "But I don't think it's up to me to ... to subject a whole lot of people to war's inconveniences just to show that I'm not afraid of it."—Washington Star.

An Effective Mask.

"Such a lot of things happened this afternoon, dear," said Mrs. Youngbride to her husband. "I complained to Norah about the stove not being blackened and she put on her things and left. Then I decided to black the stove myself and right in the midst of it who should call but Mrs. DeStyle."

"I just put some more blacking on my face, went to the door and told her I wasn't in. And off she went saying she would call again."—Boston Transcript.

GIVE THE BABY A CHANCE.

Uncle Sam's Health Service Makes Infantile Plea.

Bad air, bad milk, over-crowding, poverty, dirt, ignorance, heat—these combine in summer to kill the city baby. It seems as though the brunt of the cities' sanitary sins were focused on the baby. The baby didn't ask to come, to live in a hot, dark, air-tight tenement, to be fed on dirty, half spoiled milk, to be pestered with flies and mosquitoes. He is not responsible for any of these conditions and it is his right that he have fresh air, clean surroundings and decent food. The United States Public Health Service issues free of charge to all applicants a bulletin on "The Summer Care of Infants." It should be in the hands of every mother.

Good Reason.

A woman from the city was spending the summer in a small town, and one day, while doing her marketing, she asked the butcher how he happened to choose his business. He hesitated a moment, and then: "Well, I don't know," he answered, "but I always was fond of animals."

QUESTIONS SENT FOREST RANGERS

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Albany, July 20.—It is examination time for the Forest Rangers of the Conservation Commission. Questions which serve as a basis for determining the proficiency of the men on the force and the diligence with which they have studied the forest manual provided for them, have just been sent out by Assistant Superintendent of State Forests William G. Howard to all of the men in the woods, with instructions to return the answers not later than July 25.

The examination will be used as an aid in grading the rangers of the force and future preferment in the service and raises in pay are to be based partly upon the familiarity of the men with their duties as shown in their answers to the examination. Among the questions on the examination paper are the following:

Explain the organization of the fire protective force. Name each class of men employed, and define the duties of each.

State what action you would take in case of a forest fire reported five miles due north of your headquarters. Consider conditions as they actually exist at that point and assume a strong west wind blowing. Give full details and outline every step to be taken until fire is extinguished.

What would you do in case it was reported to you that timber was being cut on state land in your district? Outline the procedure you would follow to determine whether or not trespass had been committed: and state what information you would include in your report on the matter in case you found a trespass.

Give the substance of that section of the law which refers to the setting of fires to clear land. Where does that section apply? What is the number of the section in the new law? If you found a person burning piles of apple tree branches in his orchard, what action would you take? Would you report this as a violation of the law? If so, why? If not, why not?

How would you go about it to construct an observer's cabin 10x14 feet on the summit of a given mountain station? State what mountain station you chose. Give itemized list of material required and estimate of cost of the cabin completed.

What is an occupancy of state land?

TO RAISE TABLET FOR JOHN BROWN OF OSAWATOMIE

Among the unusual features of the summer in the heart of the Adirondack Mountains, says a Lake Placid dispatch to the New York Times, is a projected movement from which may grow a new day of observance. According to the present program, "John Brown Day," on some date in August not yet fixed, is to be, as the name indicates, set apart in which to pay long delayed tribute to the memory of "the old man of Osawatomie."

Though hundreds of those who visit this mountain retreat annually make the pilgrimage to the spot where John Brown lies buried two miles southeast of the village, the percentage of those throughout the country who know just where his body "lies moldering in the grave" is probably small indeed. That a man who stirred the nation as John Brown stirred it, and whose activities ended with his death in the faraway southland, should have been buried up here in the mountains of the North Country is surprising to those not familiar with the facts.

Brown, who had established a profitable wool business at Springfield, Mass., where he located in 1846, was given a tract of land at North Elba, N. Y., by Gerrit Smith, who had established there the hamlet of Freeman's Home, a small community of free negroes to whom Mr. Smith had given land. In the belief that he could aid these people, Brown in 1849 removed with his family to what is now the John Brown farm.

One Favorite Boulder.

As a rule farmers in the Adirondack country are not fond of the rocks; they are too plentiful. There was one rock, however, in his North Elba farm that John Brown grew to love. It is there yet, a great boulder in the very dooryard of the farmhouse. And when, after his defeat and capture at Harper's Ferry, after his trial, conviction, and sentence to death, he made, just before the execution, one final request, it was that his body might be buried beside this great boulder where, as he recalled in review of the pleasant days spent in these mountains, he loved to sit and read the Word of God."

And so, through cities draped in black and to the mournful tolling of bells, they brought the body north and buried it, for where John Brown alive had been despised as a murderer and an enemy of good government, John Brown dead was mourned as the champion of the inalienable rights of man. Indexible in its devotion to a cause, cold, austere, had been the life of this man. The burial was in keeping. It took place on a bitter, bleak day in December. Round about towered the great snowcapped peaks of the range. The frozen earth of the peaceful Adirondacks reluctantly gave place to the body of this advocate or armed strife. Few words were spoken at the grave and the few friends there hastened away. The widow sold the 244 acres for the sum of $500. The remaining members of the family settled principally in the west. In the hands of strangers it was not long before neglect ran riot over the farm and over the grave of John Brown.

Then years later, Kate Field visited the place. In her terse style she wrote of the conditions as she found them. A wave of pity and patriotism swept over the country and eighteen New York men and one Boston woman joined with Kate Field in subscriptions of $100 each. With the fund thus raised the farm was purchased, and in 1896 was turned over to the State of New York to be preserved thereafter as a part of the Adirondack Reserve, the legislature passing an enabling act authorizing acceptance of the gift. The donors, whose names now appear on a granite monument just outside the burial inclosure included Kate Field, Isaac H. Bailey, John E. Williams, William H. Lee, George A. Robbins, George Cabot Ward, Henry Clews, Randolph Martin, LeGrand B. Cannon, Charles S. Smith, S. B. Chittenden, Isaac Sherman, Jackson S. Shultz, Elliott C. Cowdin, Thomas Murphy, Charles G. Judson, Salem H. Wales, Sinclair Toucey, Horace B. Claflin and "a Boston woman."

Medical College Held Body.

The name of John Brown and the year of his death, 1859, are cut in bold characters in the face of the great rock and at the head of his grave beside it is an ancient stone incased in glass.

The body of Watson Brown, after remaining unburied for a period of nearly twenty-three years, was finally buried beside that of his father on October 12, 1882.

By the authorities of Virginia, Watson Brown was held a criminal and the request of the Medical College at Winchester for his body for anatomical demonstration was readily granted. The appeals of the young man's mother were in vain and the college retained possession of it. When, a few years later, the Union army occupied Winchester, an Indiana surgeon heard the story from the physicians who had prepared the body. The surgeon obtained the body and had it sent to his home town in Indiana. Twenty years afterward, hearing that Mrs. Brown was coming from her home in California to Lake Placid, he wrote offering the mother her son's remains for Christian burial. After members of the Brown family had satisfied themselves that the body was indeed that of Watson, it was brought here and the funeral, twenty-three years deferred, took place on the lawn before the John Brown farmhouse.

In addition to the graves of John Brown and his sons, Watson and Oliver, the burial plot on the farm just outside this village contains the common, unmarked grave of ten of his followers who either fell with him at Harper's Ferry or met death as a result of that encounter, and whose bones were later brought north and buried beside the body of their leader.

Bronze Tablet is Cast.

Principally to honor John Brown but also to honor the members of his little band of twenty-two, and especially those buried beside him, it is now planned, on John Brown Day, to dedicate a memorial tablet which shall be affixed to the great boulder within the burial inclosure on the John Brown farm. This tablet, which is now being cast at the John Williams foundry in New York city, will be of bronze, 49 by 27 inches, and will bear at the top a bust of John Brown in relief. Over the figure will be the words he is said to have spoken before going into the affray at Harper's Ferry:

"We should be concerned not about how long the end of life is away but how well we have lived when the end does come."

In a line divided by the figure will be the title by which Brown became famous "John Brown of Osawatomie."

Directly beneath the figure will be this inscription:

"Here lies buried John Brown, born at Torrington, Conn., May 9, 1800.

"He emigrated to Kansas in 1855, where he took an active part in the contest against the Pro-Slavery Party. He gained, in August, 1856, a victory at Osawatomie over a superior number of Missourians who had invaded Kansas. (whence his nickname 'Osawatomie')

"He conceived the idea of becoming the liberator of the negro slaves in the south, and on the night of October 16, 1859, at the head of a devoted band of twenty-two followers, he seized the United States Arsenal at Harper's Ferry, Va., with the view of arming the negroes and inciting a servile insurrection.

"He was defeated and captured October 18, 1859; was tried by the Commonwealth of Virginia at Harper's Ferry, October 27 to 31, and was executed at Charlestown, Va., December 2, 1859."

Exercises During August.

The tablet will be completed the first week in August, and it is now planned to have the exercises take place on some day in the second week of August. Arrangements are in the hands of Byron R. Brewster of Lake Placid, who as a boy lived in the family of John Brown on the farm in this village, and was there at the time of the execution and when the body was brought there for burial. Mr. Brewster's sister Martha Brewster, became the wife of Oliver Brown.

Mr. Brewster has been in correspondence with Salmon Brown, the only surviving son of John Brown, himself now an aged man, and with three daughters of John Brown, two married and one unmarried, all of whom reside near Pasadena, Cal., and has obtained their consent and approval of the plan to have the tablet affixed to the boulder. Already a considerable sum in subscriptions to the tablet fund has been received by Mr. Brewster and it is probable that a large number of other subscriptions will be received before the dedication takes place.

John E. Milholland of New York, whose great 1,000-acre ranch, Meadowmount, is near Elizabethtown, is much interested in the movement headed by Mr. Brewster, and will undoubtedly act as one of the speakers at the dedication. Also it is probable that Frank B. Sanborn of Concord, Mass., whose "Life and Letters" have made him the recognized historian of John Brown, will be present as a speaker. Mr. Brewster and those associated with him in the movement are also hopeful of being able to secure Colonel Theodore Roosevelt as a speaker on that occasion. Colonel Roosevelt was the principal speaker at the dedication of the monument to John Brown of Osawatomie, Kan., a number of years ago, and it is known that he is much interested in the life of the champion of the slaves. The exact date of the dedication will be announced shortly.

FOR LONGER TERM IN RURAL SCHOOL

The first problem in the program of the Federal Bureau of Education in its nation-wide campaign for better rural schools is that of a longer school term. "A school term of not less than 160 days for each child" is the minimum term, according to Commissioner Claxton, which all states with a shorter term should strive to reach.

The latest data (1910) available concerning the length of term for urban schools and for rural schools separately given the average number of days school was in session during the year for urban schools, 184.3, and for rural schools, 137.7. "For the United States as a whole the urban schools are in session 46.6 days longer each year than the rural schools," says A. C. Monahan, the Bureau's Specialist in Rural School Administration.

In Rhode Island and Connecticut, the difference between the urban and rural school term is 3.8 days, while in South Carolina it is 88.5 days. The average number of days in the rural school term in the several states ranges from 90 in New Mexico to 180 in Rhode Island. Four states—New Mexico, North and South Carolina, and Arkansas—each had in 1910 a rural school term of less than 100 days, while Florida had a rural term of exactly 100.1 days. 'But," declares Mr. Monahan, "these averages do not tell the whole story. There is much variation above and below the average, there are many school districts, and even many counties, [illegible] term for the past year was not over 60 days."

From the reports for the school year ending June 30, 1915, there were 15 rural school districts in Arkansas that held no school that year; 3 school districts in that state with only one month of school; 60 school districts with only two months of school; and 577 school districts with only three months of school. And yet a great majority of the town and city schools in Arkansas have a school term of eight or nine months. That there are equally deplorable conditions in the rural schools of other states will be shown in the next talk. This discrimination against the farm boy and the farm girl in free school privileges is not just nor wise.

NORWEGIAN SHIP SAW "SUB."

Bremen May be Near Bahamas Belief of Some.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Colon, July 20.—Declarations by members of the crew of the Norwegian steamer Terrier that they sighted a submarine off Watling Island, one of the Bahamas, created great interest here today. According to the sailors, the submarine dived before the Terrier could approach it.

One theory discussed here after the report, was that the German submersible Bremen had tried to reach the Virginia capes, but had been intercepted by British warships and driven far out of its course.

Purchase of Three Schooners Causes Official Curiosity.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, July 20.—Three fast-sailing schooners with auxiliary power have been purchased by Mexicans, according to information in the hands of the department of justice today. Negotiations are under way for the purchase of at least three more such vessels, it is understood.

Agents of the department of justice are keeping in touch with each of these vessels, which are the Frontera, supposed to be at sea; the Lucy H., at Pensacola, Fla., and the Ventura, in Key West.

British Prisoners Killed.

Mrs. Amelia Elmendorf of Clintondale spent the week end in this place with relatives.

Mrs. Dr. Wilker has spent a few days in New York city.

S. G. Carpenter is having a new shingle roof put on the house in Washington avenue occupied by Orsen Sheeley.

Mrs. Alfred Terpening of Poughkeepsie is spending a few weeks with Mr. and Mrs. Myron Terpening.

The Whitley House has a number of city guests. This warm weather sends them out and these people have a fine large house and are always courteous and the people who board with them one season generally return the next and bring others with them. They are expecting new ones this week.

Last Sunday Mrs. Amelia Dickinson and daughters, Edith and Hattie, were guests of friends in Clintondale.

Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Palmer had with them for the week end their son, Alfred, who is in New Jersey.

Mrs. Budd of Pleasant Valley was in town this week visiting relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Palmer and family motored to New York city recently on a shopping expedition.

The Hebrew boarding houses of this place are pretty well filled up. They seem to have come in fast this season, the cause is probably due to so much sickness in the city.

Mrs. Amelia Budd and daughter, Grace, of Middletown are spending some time at her farm here.

Miss Grace Schoonmaker and Mrs. Amelia Budd accompanied the Rev. Mr. Pryne to Mombaccus Sunday afternoon and attended church services at that place.

Blessing of Work.

Work is a guardian angel. Work turns the wilderness into a garden. Work does sometimes what even love cannot do; roots a man firmly in his place in the world and gives him the blessed sensation: This plot of ground in the wide immensity of earth was meant for me to grow in.—Robert Hichens.

ARMY WITHDRAWAL AND MEXICAN LOAN

These Will be First Points to be Taken up Once Mexican Officials O. K. Tentative Agreement Approved by Arredondo and Polk.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, July 20.—Approval by Mexico City authorities of the tentative program outlined by Acting Secretary of State Polk and Ambassador Designate Arredondo is practically the only obstacle in the way of announcement of the plans for the direct negotiations to settle American differences with the de facto government of Mexico.

These preliminary arrangements had been held until some idea of the strength of the insurgents' movement in northern Mexico could be gained. Officials here are convinced that there is not a force of revolutionists there so large that it will menace the American border through the inability of General Trevino's army to cope with it. Unless some incident occurs within the next week to cause the state department to change its views on this matter, it is confidently expected that announcement of the program for the proposed direct negotiations between the United States and the Carranza government will be made.

Withdrawal of the American column and protection of the border will be the first points of issue. Next in importance will be the secret consideration of plans for the rehabilitation of Mexico, with the probable unofficial backing of private bankers by the American government.

HOW

To Remove Painful Substances From Your Eye

DUST, cinder or other foreign matter may be removed sometimes by grasping the upper eyelashes and drawing the eyelid downward, allowing it in returning to come in contact with the lower lashes so that they may act as a broom or brush. If the foreign body is on the ball this will not remove it.

Frequently it is sufficient to rub the other eye vigorously. Thus by causing sympathetic movements of the injured eye an increase of tears may help to wash out the offending particle. Do not in any case rub the injured eye.

Some make a practice of inserting a flaxseed in the eye, the seed moving around and removing the foreign matter.

The best way to remove foreign matter is to hold a toothpick over the upper lid with one hand and with the other grasp the upper eyelashes and lift and bend the eyelid sharply back over the toothpick so that the inner pink surface is in plain sight.

Sharp eyes and good light, with perhaps the assistance of a magnifying glass, should detect the intruding particle, which should be removed by some sterile body if possible, such as sterilized gauze.

Occasionally for some time after the object has been removed there will be an irritation, giving the impression that the object is still there.

Swab the eyes with a solution of witch hazel and boiled water, equal parts, and this sensation soon passes.

YOUR TYPEWRITER.

How to Clean and Care For This Modern Necessity.

Many million people use typewriters and a great many of them leave the typewriter uncovered most of the time when not in use.

There is one great economy in covering a typewriter—in the saving of the ribbon. Of course a cover also keeps out dust and dirt and keeps other people from using the machine, but by far the greatest direct saving is in the ribbon.

The liquid ink on the ribbon will evaporate just like any other liquid and if it has the whole room to evaporate in a great deal more will come off than when it is confined in a small space. As science puts it, a liquid will evaporate continually until the space around the liquid is saturated with its vapor.

This saturation point rises with the temperature, so on a hot day more ink evaporates than on a cold day. But when a space is saturated with the vapor the evaporation ceases, and so if the space be made small, by means of a typewriter cover, a minimum amount of the ink will be lost. A proof of the matter is found in the pronounced odor a typewriter gives off when the cover is taken off after a period of rest.

Exactly the same thing happens with a bottle half full of water. Leave this bottle open and in a few days all the water has evaporated. But close the bottle with a stopper and only enough water will evaporate to fill the space between the water surface and the stopper, thus saving practically the whole contents for further use.

Why Birds Must Have Water For Both Drinking and Bathing Purposes.

"Water is just as important to the birds as food," says a writer in the Woman's Home Companion, "and sometimes is harder for them to find. Any plans for attracting birds must include some sort of water supply both for drinking and bathing. It is almost impossible to let an apartment to these tenants without a bathroom.

"A bird bath can be made a very attractive feature of the garden All the taste and money one has can be lavished on it. I often wonder whether the birds appreciate the Carrara marble and the bronze sculptures provided for them I rather think they do Practically, however, they get on very well with a cement pool. It should be shallow, with a slowly shelving rim and a rough bottom, and it should be in a somewhat secluded spot, for, as I've already said, birds are shy."

Take five quarts of water, six ounces of hops, boil it three hours, then strain the liquor, add to it five quarts of water, four ounces of bruised ginger root; boil this again twenty minutes, strain and add four pounds of sugar. WHY WE SHOULD AVOID MOISTENING STAMPS AND ENVELOPES WITH THE TONGUE.—Sometimes, if we think of it, we use a little sponge to moisten the back of the postage stamp or the gummed flap of the envelope, but more often we touch it with the tongue. If we would always bear in mind the fact that the glue used on the stamps and envelopes is made from refuse products, which consist mainly of bones and hoofs of animals that may have been diseased, we would think twice before touching it with the tongue. The stamps and envelopes themselves are made from rags and in the process of their transformation into paper are handled by all sorts of people.

FORMS PARTY TO ASK PEACE.

London, July 20.—Count Michael Karolyi, successor of Kossuth in the fight for Hungarian independence, has begun an agitation for immediate peace between Hungary and her enemies with or without the consent of Germany and Austria.

Count Karolyi, says a Budapest dispatch to the "Morning Post" has resigned from the presidency of the Hungarian Independence party and will form a new organization, which will demand peace without delay. Seventy members of the Hungarian Parliament, the dispatch adds, are enrolled already in the new party's ranks.

A sensation was caused in the Hungarian Parliament on December 7, when Count Karolyi demanded that the government make peace proposals to the enemy powers. He argued that Hungary had achieved everything she desired by the war, had saved the country from invasion and had preserved the monarchy and throne, and that the Hungarians had a perfect right to come forward with their claims for compensation.

Billingsgate and Fish.

Billingsgate is noted for more than its picturesque language, for it is the world's greatest middleman's fish market. London devours over 1,500,000 pounds of fish every day in normal times—250,000 tons a year that means. Eleven railroads bring about 350 tons a day, and the remainder comes by water. Before being offered for sale the fish at Billingsgate are inspected by a commission of the Worshipful Company of Fishmongers, which holds letters patent granted it by King Edward I. at the beginning of the thirteenth century. This ancient society represents, through the North Sea Protective association, more than fifty of the leading fishing companies of Great Britain.

LAWS OF NEW YORK—By Authority.

CHAP. 589.

AN ACT to amend the insurance law, in relation to domestic insurance corporations doing business in a foreign state or territory.

Became a law May 18, 1916, with the approval of the Governor. Passed, three-fifths being present.

The People of the State of New York, represented in Senate and Assembly, do enact as follows:

Section 1. Section two hundred and four of chapter thirty-three of the laws of nineteen hundred and nine, entitled "An act in relation to insurance corporations," constituting chapter twenty-eight of the consolidated laws, is hereby amended to read as follows:

§ 204. Foreign corporations. No such corporation, association or society organized under the laws of any other state or territory of the United States or District of Columbia, or foreign countries, except such secret fraternal societies having subordinate lodges or councils as are now authorized to transact business within this state with the consent of the superintendent, shall transact business herein until it has received from the superintendent of insurance a certificate of authority to do business in this state, a duplicate of which shall be filed in his office. The superintendent shall annually issue to such foreign corporation, association or society renewal certificates of authority to continue its business, if its annual report is satisfactory to him, which certificate shall be filed in the office of the clerk of the county where its principal office is located within this state, within sixty days after filing such annual report, and no such foreign corporation, association or society, except secret fraternal societies above specified, shall be authorized to continue such business after the expiration of such sixty days unless such certificate shall have been so received and filed. The superintendent shall refuse a certificate of authority or a renewal of the same to any such foreign corporation, association or society, except such secret fraternal societies, when, in his judgment, such refusal will best promote the public interests, or when, by the laws of the state or territory under which the same is organized, the corporations, associations or societies of this state doing a life or casualty business upon the co-operative or assessment plan are not permitted to transact such business in such other state or territory. Provided, however, that except in the case of fraternal organizations, and except in the case of corporations complying with the conditions required of domestic corporations in procuring certificates for foreign states, as provided in section two hundred and four-a, of this act, no certificate of authority to do business in this state except renewal certificates of authority to such corporations, associations or societies as were on April twenty-sixth, nineteen hundred and six, authorized to transact business within the state, shall be issued by the superintendent of insurance after June first, nineteen hundred and six. When any other state or territory shall impose any obligation upon such corporation, association or society of this state, or their agents transacting business in such other state or territory, the like obligations are hereby imposed upon similar corporations, associations or societies of such other state or territory and their agents or representatives transacting business in this state, and such corporation, association or society of such other state or territory, and their agents and representatives shall pay all licenses, fees or penalties to, and make deposits with, the state treasurer imposed by the laws of such other state or territory upon any such corporation, association or society of this state doing business therein, and in case of failure to pay the same, the superintendent shall refuse the certificate of authority herein provided for, or cancel such certificate in case one shall have previously been issued.

§ 2. Chapter thirty-three of the laws of nineteen hundred and nine, entitled "An act in relation to insurance corporations," constituting chapter twenty-eight of the consolidated laws is hereby amended by adding thereto after section two hundred and four, the following:

§ 204-a. Whenever the laws or public officers of any foreign state or territory shall require as a condition of or as a prerequisite to the entry of any domestic corporation now doing business under article six of this chapter, into such foreign state or territory, or to the issuance to it of a license to do business therein, that such corporation shall file with any official or department of such foreign state or territory, a certificate in substance or to the effect that corporations of such foreign state or territory conducting a similar business therein, may, upon proper application to the superintendent of insurance of this state and upon complying with the laws of this state in respect thereto, be permitted to enter and carry on business herein, subject to the laws of this state, the superintendent of insurance, upon the application of such domestic corporation shall issue to it one or more such certificates, provided, however, that it shall establish to the satisfaction of the superintendent of insurance that it has had an experience of at least forty years; that its membership is confined and limited to members of one fraternity; that its actual expenses of management shall be limited in any one year to twenty per centum of the cash income actually received by it from premiums, assessments and membership fees; that it is possessed of assets held for the benefit of policy or certificate holders only, either in cash or invested as required in the case of life insurance companies by the laws of this state, or both, at least equal to the aggregate amount of its accrued liabilities and contingent reserve liability, whereof there shall be deposited with the superintendent of insurance the sum of one hundred thousand dollars in the stocks or bonds of the United States or of this state not estimated above their current market value, or in the bonds of a county or incorporated city in this state authorized to be issued by the legislature, not estimated above their par value nor their current market value, or in bonds and mortgages on improved, unincumbered real property in this state, worth fifty per centum more than the amount loaned thereon. The accrued liabilities and contingent reserve liability to be determined as follows.

1. The amount of all reported death, or other benefit claims then remaining unpaid including unpaid installments on claims payable in installments;

2. The amount of all accrued liabilities, including assessments or premiums paid in advance for any period beyond that covered by "three" hereunder;

3. An amount equal to the expected claims by the American experience table of mortality to the next succeeding date when a regular assessment or premium payment falls due, the nonpayment of which would cause the insurance under outstanding certificates or policies to cease and determine;

4. In event that the corporation has outstanding any certificates or policies under which any payment, other than a disability benefit is promised either actually or contingently to be made to a living certificate or policy holder, or under which the term of premium paid is, actually or contingently, less than the entire possible term of the insurance protection, an amount equal to the required reserve for all the benefits promised by such certificates or policies, computed on the net premium basis according to the American experience table of mortality with interest at four per centum per annum;

5. An amount equal to the single year term premium at attained age upon each and every outstanding certificate or policy, not covered by subdivision four, determined by the American experience table of mortality with interest at four per centum per annum, less a credit of the amount of the stipulated or stated net mortuary payment to be made, subject to the laws governing said corporation, during said year by or on account of such such certificate or policy, which credit shall, however, in no event exceed the said single year term premium charged against the individual certificate or policy on account of which such credit is taken;

6. Every such insurance corporation incorporated under the laws of any other state of the United States, and doing business in this state, shall keep on deposit with the superintendent of insurance of this state or with the auditor, comptroller or general fiscal officer of the state by whose laws it is incorporated the same amount and character of securities which are required for deposit in this state of a domestic corporation. The superintendent of insurance shall be furnished with the certificate of such auditor, comptroller or general fiscal officer, under his hand and official seal, that he, as such auditor, comptroller or general fiscal officer of such state, holds in trust and on deposit for the benefit of the policy or certificate holders of the corporation such stocks and securities. Such certificate shall embrace the items of the securities so held and shall state that the officer making it is satisfied that the securities are worth the amount required by law. Any foreign corporation permitted or seeking to do business in this state of the character herein described which invests its funds in accordance with the laws of the state in which it is incorporated shall be held to meet the requirements of this article for the investment of funds.

§ 3. This act shall take effect immediately.

Became a law May 18, 1916, with the approval of the Governor. Passed, three-fifths being present.

The People of the State of New York, represented in Senate and Assembly, do enact as follows:

Section 1. The commission on new prisons, as established by chapter six hundred and seventy of the laws of nineteen hundred and six, is continued, and shall hereafter consist of the superintendent of state prisons, the superintendent of public works and the state architect and two persons to be appointed by the governor, with the powers and duties prescribed by this act. Upon the taking effect of this act the terms of office of the commissioners of new prisons now in office and of all officers and employees of such commission shall expire.

§ 2. The commission may employ a secretary and fix his compensation, which shall not exceed one thousand dollars in any fiscal year. Each commissioner and the secretary shall be paid his necessary expenses incurred in the discharge of his official duties. Such commission shall select either the site heretofore acquired by the state at Wingdale for prison purposes, or the site heretofore acquired by the state at Beekman for a farm and industrial colony for tramps and vagrants as a site for the construction theron of a new farm and industrial prison, in accordance with the provisions of this act. Such commission shall adopt and approve plans, to be prepared or approved by the state architect, or if the commission so determine, to be prepared by other architects after public competition for the location, construction and equipment of the buildings needed for such prison, and, subject to the provisions of this act as to the employment of prison labor, may enter into a contract or contracts for the erection and completion of such prison upon terms believed by the commission to be most advantageous to the state, at a total cost not exceeding one million two hundred and fifty thousand dollars, for the buildings and for the heat, light and power equipment thereof. Such contract or contracts shall provide that the state shall not be liable for any failure on the part of the legislature to appropriate sufficient money for the completion of the contract or contracts within the terms thereof. All contracts in connection with the construction of such prison plant, and all estimates and vouchers for the payment of money thereunder, shall be approved by the commission prior to their audit by the comptroller. If the commission determines that a public competition for plans shall be held it shall follow so far as practicable the rules for competitions laid down by the American Institute of Architects.

§ 3. Such commission shall also select a location on the site of the state prison at Sing Sing for the construction thereon of such new buildings as may be necessary for the purposes of a receiving and distribution station for an industrial prison for prisoners committed to state prison. Such commission shall adopt and approve plans, to be prepared or approved by the state architect, for the erection and equipment of such new buildings and for the demolition of the present cell house and cell block at Sing Sing. Such commission may, subject to the provisions of this act as to the employment of prison labor, enter into a contract or contracts for the erection and completion of such new buildings, at a total cost of not exceeding seven hundred and fifty thousand dollars. Such contract or contracts shall provide that the state shall not be liable for any failure on the part of the legislature to appropriate sufficient money for the completion of the contract or contracts within the terms thereof.

§ 4. The state architect may, with the approval of the commission on new prisons, employ an architect or architects or such assistants and superintendents of construction as may be necessary to prepare the plans and specifications and to locally supervise the work of construction provided for by this act, whose compensation, not exceeding four per centum of the total cost of construction, shall be paid out of the funds appropriated for such work. Prison labor shall, so far as practicable, be employed in the work authorized by this act, and for such purpose the superintendent of state prisons is hereby authorized to transfer prisoners from any state prison to the site selected for the new farm and industrial prison authorized by this act. The commission is authorized to erect temporary barracks for the custody of such prisoners. The state superintendent shall continue to have the custody, control and maintenance of all prisoners so transferred.

§ 5. The sum of two hundred thousand dollars ($200,000) is hereby appropriated for the construction of the said new buildings and the demolition of the old cell block and cell house at Sing Sing prison, as authorized by this act, and the sum of two hundred thousand dollars ($200,000) is hereby appropriated for beginning the construction of the new farm and industrial prison, as authorized by this act. Such money shall be payable by the treasurer on the warrant of the comptroller on the order of such commission.

§ 6. All property, books, papers, records and documents pertaining to the office, powers and duties of the commission on new prisons in the possession or under the control of such commission or the members thereof or their subordinates shall, on the taking effect of this act, be delivered on demand to the commission on new prisons as reorganized by this act.

§ 7. Chapter six hundred and seventy of the laws of nineteen hundred and six, entitled "An act to establish a new state prison in the eastern part of the state to take the place of Sing Sing prison; to authorize the governor to appoint a commission to select and purchase a site," as amended by chapter five hundred and twenty-one of the laws of nineteen hundred and seven, chapters two hundred and eight and two hundred and fourteen of the laws of nineteen hundred and eight, chapters one hundred and sixty-six and four hundred and forty-seven of the laws of nineteen hundred and nine and chapter six hundred and ninety-three of the laws of nineteen hundred and ten, is hereby repealed.

§ 8. Chapter three hundred and sixty-five of the laws of nineteen hundred and ten, entitled "An act to authorize the commission on new prisons to select and purchase another site for the new state prison to take the place of Sing Sing, and use money for such purpose heretofore appropriated to said commission," is hereby repealed.

§ 9. Nothing in this act shall be construed to invalidate any claim or claims against the state accrued or accruing under any valid contract or contracts.

THEY SURELY ARE WONDERFUL LITTLE WORKERS—

FREEMAN ONE-CENT-A-WORD "WANT" ADLETS

For the Honor Of the Flag

How a Man of Peace Was Stirred to Deeds of Daring.

By CLARISSA MACKIE

Luke Fraser twisted his sun bleached mustache into aggressive points and fixed his blue eyes on the rim of the desert where the horizon met the low serrated lines of the Dingus foothills. When he spoke he did not glance at his companion, but apparently addressed his remark to the distant hills.

"I usually tote a gun," he drawled smilingly. "When I meet a coyote—beast or human—I'm ready for him, and nine times out of ten when the coyote sees the gun he's plumb scared and he thinks to himself: 'Tain't no use monkeying with that galoot. He's too darned ready to shoot.'"

His companion smiled loftily. "Your argument doesn't hold water, Luke."

"You bet it doesn't," retorted Mr. Fraser, facing about. "There's more sand in my makeup than there is water, Humphrey."

"I'm a peaceable man," contended George Humphrey. "If a man does me an injury I try to return good for evil. I turn the other cheek to him."

Luke breathed faster.

"Being postmaster at Cactus Branch is kind of a peaceable job; when a man does you a bad turn you can hold up his mail, though it's unlawful and risky, but it's been done!"

Humphrey's lantern jaws snapped together. "When did I hold up your mail?" he demanded, but his eyes shifted from Luke's calm blue gaze.

"Mrs. Fancher was complaining she didn't get a letter I sent her," he accused.

"Maybe you didn't write it," sneered Humphrey.

"Maybe I"— Luke stopped abruptly and strained his eyes toward a couple of riders slowly approaching the ranch house. The man rode with an upright, military bearing, the woman with the graceful ease of one long accustomed to the saddle. She was young and pretty, with masses of soft black hair tucked under the wide brim of her white felt hat. They drew rein beside the corral gate where Luke and Humphrey were lounging.

"Good morning, gentlemen," smiled the Widow Fancher. "This is Captain Linney, from the Sandy Bluff barracks—oh, you have met before?" as the three men exchanged greetings. "You tell them, captain," she appealed prettily to her companion.

Captain Linney's sunbrowned countenance was grave. "I came over to tell you people that you had better pack up and come into town for a few days. There's going to be trouble by tomorrow night."

"Pedro at it again?" demanded Luke eagerly.

Linney nodded.

"Sorry, but I've got to stay and watch my stock," returned the rancher.

"Alone?" Linney's brows lifted in surprise.

"I reckon my men will stop along and help, and here's Humphrey, spoiling for a scrap. You'll stay, won't you, old scout?"

SUDDENLY HUMPHREY APPEARED AT AN UPPER WINDOW.

Humphrey cleared his throat. "My duty as postmaster of this here town demands my presence in Sandy Bluff."

"Of course Mr. Humphrey is right," observed Mrs. Fancher.

"But he doesn't believe in fighting—we've just been arguing over it. Suppose they tore the flag down from the postoffice—what would you do, eh?" Luke demanded of Humphrey.

"They wouldn't touch it; they wouldn't dare," smiled the postmaster serenely. "The flag protects itself."

"It does not," retorted Luke fiercely. "It's the man who fought and bled and died for the honor of that flag that have made it what it is. Look at the colors—blue, bottom born courage; red, the blood of heroes; white, unsullied honor of a nation!" He choked suddenly.

Mrs. Fancher's black eyes danced as she exchanged a glance with Linney.

"Then you won't come into town and help us?" asked the army man quietly.

"That's another story," retorted Luke. "I'll be there with as many of the boys as I can spare. We'll ride over some time between now and daybreak."

They shook hands, and Humphrey mounted his big rawboned sorrel and accompanied the pair.

Luke watched them out of sight. When Mrs. Fancher turned and waved her hand he swung his hat in response, but the smile was gone from his eyes, and there was a bitter look about his mouth. Even a "gun toter" may indulge in a few heart pangs when the woman he loves rides away with another man. And Linney was a good fellow in every respect, a more suitable husband than either Luke Fraser or George Humphrey, for the two latter were rivals for the pretty widow's hand.

The stars were fading in the earliest dawn when Luke and five of his men rode into Sandy Bluff. The little town twinkled with lights, and horsemen appeared suddenly from unexpected places and challenged the approach of the men from Fraser's ranch.

The day passed in silent preparations against the expected attack of Pedro and his marauding band. In the beginning the half breed had confined his activities to cattle rustling; but, emboldened by his successes, he had planned a raid on the thriving little colony at Sandy Bluff.

Luke found time to run into Mary Fancher's millinery shop and exchange a few words with the object of his adoration, but the little widow appeared sad and spiritless and even shivered when Luke referred to the coming encounter.

"There will be—killing, I suppose, Luke," she quavered as he was leaving.

"Sure thing," he returned briskly. "You better get some of the women folks together and fix a temporary hospital here—eh?"

She promised to go to work at once, and Luke left her and went to the postoffice for his letters. In the still air of the midsummer day the flag hung limply against its pole.

Luke lifted his hat in salute and entered the untidy general store, where Humphrey was flying around busily.

"Going to tote a gun tonight, Humphrey?" asked Luke.

"You know my sentiments," retorted the postmaster grimly.

"If Pedro or his men harm you—you'll slap somebody's wrist, eh?" grinned the rancher.

Humphrey scowled and said nothing.

Luke bought some tobacco and cartridges and went back to his post—to guard the mouth of Cactus bend, a waterless bed of a long forgotten creek, up which Pedro and his band could steal unobserved, hidden by the mesquite bushes on either side.

Night came on, and Luke with his companions crouched under the stars and thought of many things. He thought of his hopeless love for Mary Fancher—of his hearty dislike for George Humphrey—of the flag for whose honor he was ready to spill his life blood. There had always been fighting blood in the Fraser family. Frasers had shed blood in every war of the Union from the battle of Bunker Hill—every emergency had found a Fraser ready to battle for his country. Luke Fraser himself had been one of a company of rough riders who had charged up San Juan hill.

But Pedro was a crafty foeman. He did not approach Sandy Bluff by any expected route, but came creeping around under the adobe outer walls of the Branch hotel at the edge of the town where one of his spies admitted them through a gate. It was not until distant shots announced their presence in the town that Luke and his companions realized that Pedro had outwitted them.

In an instant they were running swiftly through the dark streets toward the center of the town. In front of the postoffice Pedro's men had massed themselves and were firing recklessly at the building, where a strong guard from the barracks had been placed.

But it was Humphrey's activity that astounded the ranchman as he now and then glimpsed the postmaster's huge form through the spitting fire.

One of the raiders had climbed to the porch roof and had torn the flag from its pole. Suddenly Humphrey appeared at an upper window—there was a crash of glass as he burst into view. In another moment the raider hurtled through the air and struck the ground and lay still. There was a yell of rage from below, and a shower of bullets spattered around Humphrey.

The postmaster appeared to have lost his reason. Like a maniac he swung the flag about his head and defied them. Others of the band swarmed up to the roof, and he flew at them like a wild man. After the third one had fallen to the ground, broken and groaning, Humphrey staggered and, clutching the flag, half fell into the open window, where he hung limply across the sill.

During the confusion of fighting on the roof the garrison had completely encircled the raiders, and when the sun lifted a red rim above the eastern horizon it shone on Pedro's dead face and the sullen countenances of his men, now prisoners.

Humphrey had been carried into Mary Fancher's shop, where Dr. Brown and the volunteer nurses were busy administering to the wounded. Luke Fraser, dusty and battle stained, came toptoeing into the room, but Mrs. Fancher waved him out.

"It's so crowded, Luke," she whispered, "and these poor fellows need all the air possible."

"All wounded—none killed?" he questioned.

"Thank God, no. Captain Linney was slightly wounded, just a scratch on the shoulder, but poor George Humphrey is badly hurt—the doctor isn't sure—ah, I am needed!" and she vanished.

Luke came again toward night, and they told him Humphrey was better; he would live. The postmaster was lying on a cot in one corner of the little shop. His gaunt face looked grim and forbidding against the white bed linen. Mary Fancher admitted Luke and told him the patient was not to be excited; then she stole outdoors, where a soldierly form lingered at the gate.

Luke saw the meeting, swallowed hard and sat down by Humphrey's bed.

"Better?" he asked awkwardly.

"Yep," croaked Humphrey feebly.

"Were—were there many dead ones?"

"Oh, a few," evaded Luke.

Humphrey was silent for a few minutes. "I suppose you think it's queer the way I acted after I said what I did to you yesterday," he ventured.

"You're some hero, Humphrey," Luke chuckled.

"Oh, pshaw!" deprecated the postmaster. "But you know they touched the flag, Luke. I couldn't stand for that."

"Sure, you couldn't. You don't need to be a gun toter, Humphrey; not with those bony fists of yours so handy."

"I didn't know it was in me, Luke," groaned the other. "I thought I was a peaceable man. I didn't know it was in me to kill a man."

"You don't know what you can do till you're tried out," observed Luke.

"There's something I want to say right here, Luke, and I want you to believe me," said the postmaster earnestly.

"Fire away. I'm listening."

"I never touched any letter you or any man ever sent through the mail. Believe that?"

"I do. It was plumb mean of me to say what I did; but, honest Injun, Humphrey, I was jealous of Mary Fancher. But I guess I never had any show there."

"Neither one of us had a look in. Captain Linney's the winner."

Their hands gripped in silent sympathy.

Humphrey broke the silence. "I didn't know it was in me, Luke; but, I guess, it's in every man who loves his country when the time's ripe and he's needed. I guess it kind of breaks loose."

As the twilight deepened Mary Fancher lingered at the gate with her soldier lover. In the dimly lighted room the discarded suitors talked in low tones not of women nor of love nor of personal disappointments and grudges, but of broader things—of the country that was theirs, of the men who had wrested it from the wilderness, of the gift of liberty and the heroes who had died to defend it—and they knew that when the call came again that they would both be ready to fight side by side for the honor of the flag whose stars and stripes hung in a dim corner of the room.

The First Universities.

To fix precisely the date of the rise of the first universities is impossible for the reason that they were not founded, but grew. They were started by a few able men who had something they wished to teach and youths wished to learn. Gradually the free, voluntary center of learning became the organized affair we know as the university. Among the earliest of these centers of learning were Salerno, Naples and Bologna, Italy being the first land to experience the literary revival. We may say that Salerno university was fairly established by the year 1000, the University of Bologna by 1100 and the University of Naples by the year 1200. The University of Paris, which owes its existence to the genius of Abelard, was founded about the same time.—New York American.

THINKS INDIANS REAL FLAG CONTENDERS

There is at least one manager in the American league who doesn't believe the Cleveland Indians are going to "blow" and he is "Bill" Donovan. The Indians have impressed the Yankee leader as being one of the strongest clubs that ever represented that city and Donovan says it is the most dangerous team in the league.

When it comes to batting in runs the other members of the Indians must "kow tow" to the hard-hitting right fielder, Elmer Robert Smith-Roth or Robert Elmer Roth-Smith, whichever way you prefer, the combination right gardener having driven in 42 runs for the Indians this season, which is only one-third gone at this writing. The Smith half of the firm has sent 20 runs across, while the Roth half has accounted for 28.

"Chic" Gandil, however, is the individual leader, having driven in 36 runs. "Tris" Speaker, though, is giving him a merry battle, having chased 31 of his team mates across the rubber. "This," however, is batting some 100 points better than "Chic." After passing by the right field firm, we find "Jack" Graney has driven in 24 men, an unusually large number for a lead-off man, who is forced to follow weak batters. In fact, all the Indians are hitting and this combined with the splendid pitching they have had to date has kept them well on top.

PATIENCE OF BILL SULLIVAN

Incident Illustrating Determination and Tenaciousness of Veteran Tiger Coach.

A little story is told of the patience and determination of Billy Sullivan, the veteran catcher and Tigers' coach.

The Tigers were in San Antonio, Tex., this spring for a couple of exhibition games. The morning of the first day Sullivan started to clean an old pipe. He shoved a match in the stem, and the wood was caught in the curve of the amber, where it stuck. Sullivan worked on the pipe all morning. He used half a dozen strips of wire in a vain attempt to force the match on through. He failed, however, and was still working on it when the call came to go to the park. Sullivan put the pipe away. That night he worked again, and the next morning he was out in front of the hotel—still working on the pipe. Along about noon he started to grin, and persons interested knew the end was near. A few minutes later the broken match was driven out and Sullivan, taking the stem between his teeth, blew long and vigorously.

Bill Sullivan.

"That must be a valuable pipe," remarked a bystander.

"Nope; it cost 50 cents," replied Sullivan.

"Why didn't you go and buy another? It wasn't worth while to work that long on a 50-cent pipe."

"Maybe not, but I'm not going to let any 50-cent pipe get me down. I started to get that out of the stem and I intended getting it out if it took me a week or a month."

The incident illustrates the patience, the determination and tenaciousness of the man.

Fohl Signs Two Pitchers.

Lee Fohl has added two more pitchers to his staff in Dana Fillgim, the star hurler of the South Atlantic league, and John Ferguson, said to be the best in the Ohio State league. Fohl certainly will need more pitchers if he intends to keep his team up at the top of the list.

Tamsett Returns to Game.

Scientific Farming

WIREWORMS DESTRUCTIVE.

Control Measures Recommended For Different Species.

[Prepared by United States department of agriculture.]

True, wireworms are reckoned by specialists in the United States department of agriculture as among the five worst pests to corn and among the twelve worst pests to wheat and oats. They attack many other crops as well, however, notably potatoes and sugar beets, and are considered one of the two most difficult groups of insects to control. To combat them successfully it is essential that the farmer should be able to recognize the various species and to distinguish them from other insects of somewhat similar appearance. To assist him in doing so the department of agriculture has just published farmers' bulletin 725, "Wireworms Destructive to Cereal and Forage Crops," by J. A. Hyslop.

CORN AND COTTON WIREWORM—A, ADULT BEETLE; B, LARVA ENLARGED.

The wheat wireworm of the northeast and middle west is pale yellow, cylindrical and shiny. When full grown it is about one inch in length and about as thick as the lead in a pencil. It can be readily recognized by the two dark spots near the base of the tail. Normally it feeds upon grass roots and produces no disturbance in the meadows. When the sod is broken, however, the insects gather in the drill rows or hills and destroy the seed or eat off the roots of the plants which sprout. In this way the crop often is absolutely destroyed.

To control the wheat wireworm land intended for corn should be plowed immediately after the first cutting of hay, usually early in July. Throughout the remainder of the summer this land should be cultivated deeply. Badly infested land in corn should also be deeply cultivated even at the risk of slightly root pruning the corn. As soon as the crop is removed the field should be very thoroughly tilled before sowing to wheat. Wheat fields that are not seeded to other crops should be plowed as soon as the wheat is harvested. This kills the worms by destroying their food supply and preventing proper hibernation. Where circumstances permit, interposing between sod and corn such crops as field peas and buckwheat, which are not severely attacked by wireworms, will materially reduce the number of worms in the soil when corn is planted.

Corn wireworms damage cereal and forage crops in the middle Atlantic states, the New England states and the Mississippi valley. They are reddish brown in color, about one and one-fourth inches long, cylindrical in shape and have three slight lobes or projections on the tail. These insects spend a considerably longer time in the soil than the wheat wireworm. In some cases they have been known to live in the ground as long as six years. On the other hand, they are almost exclusively confined to poorly drained and heavy soils. For this reason heavy liming and thorough tile draining will undoubtedly prove beneficial in their control. The thorough cultivation of waste land, especially along drainage ditches and creeks during midsummer, and the deep cultivation of crops and fallow land are also recommended.

Meadow wireworms attack corn, potatoes, onions, cabbage, radishes, turnips, horseradish, spinach, sugar beets and alfalfa. In the northwest they are most destructive on irrigated lands and in the east on poorly drained areas. They look very much like the dry land wireworm, but can be easily distinguished from other varieties by their forked tails. They do not usually attack beans or peas, and the planting of these crops before seeding to corn would therefore assist in controlling the pest. The thorough tile draining of infested fields in eastern areas and the heavy liming of the land at the rate of about two tons to the acre, together with deep cultivation during July and August are other measures that specialists recommend for their control.

The dry land wireworm and the flatted wireworm of the west are very similar in appearance and seem to be confined to the dry farming regions of the northwest and to the wheat regions of the northern middle west.

In the dry land regions this wireworm feeds only during spring. The hot, dry months it passes at a depth of from four to eight inches below the surface. This habit makes it possible to control the pest by breaking up the soil in the hot months. The resting wireworms that are not actually crushed by the cultivation will soon succumb to drying when their cells are broken open. In infested regions in the northwest, therefore, farmers are recommended to disk or drag harrow the summer fallow as early as possible in the spring in order to produce a dust mulch. The disking should be continued as often as is necessary to maintain this mulch and to keep down the weeds. In July or early in August the summer fallow should be plowed and immediately afterward dragged. As soon as the crop is removed the stubble should be plowed. This method of handling land will not only kill off many of the insects, but will materially reduce the weeds. The early disking merely softens the soil and allows the weed seeds to sprout. These are subsequently destroyed by the summer plowing.

In conclusion, the new bulletin of the department of agriculture points out that various so called remedies for wireworms have been found quite useless. Among these is the use of various substances upon the seed corn and wheat. Certain commercial fertilizers which have been recommended as insecticides have also proved worthless in this respect. The application of lime is not effective as an insecticide, but is of value in rendering the soil more easily drained. Late fall plowing appears to be without effect. Trapping the worms with baits of poisoned vegetables is impracticable in the case of field crops, although it may be of some value in intensive farming.

Killing Insects With Gas.

Fruit growers of California who have long contended with insect pests are now employing a new method of killing the pests, which is said to be exceedingly efficient, says the Popular Science Monthly. Under the old system of spraying the trees the best result that could be obtained under the most favorable conditions was the removal of from 80 to 85 percent of the insects. By fumigating the fruit trees with hydrocyanic gas it is said that 100 per cent results are usually obtained.

A gas making machine has been recently placed at the disposal of the fruit growers, which mixes the component parts of the gas and liberates the fumigating gas in any desired quantities. In the employment of this machine a tent is placed over the tree which is about to be treated. By means of markings on the canvas the number of cubic feet occupied by the tree is accurately measured, and the amount of gas to be employed is thus decided.

The gas is liberated under the tent and permeates the inclosed space, thus fumigating every branch and leaf of the infected tree. The gas is held in the tent for about an hour, when all the insects are usually found to have perished.

A Fruit Picking Belt.

A simple device that is of great help to pickers has been used in A. B. Veeder's orchard in Georgia. It is especially helpful when picking from low trees, as it allows the picker the use of both hands.

It consists of a leather strap with hooks at both ends, as shown in the cut, with strap running through loops, and with holes at intervals so as to fit it to the individual picker. A wider band of leather with slits for the strap to work through provides the necessary pad for the shoulder.

The picker snaps the hooks into staples in the basket, and there it hangs until it is full of fruit. By carrying a basket in this way the picker will not drop the fruit, as he frequently does if the basket is on the ground. With one hand he can lift and turn the twig to see if the peaches show the yellow cast on the under side. Two years' experience in the Veeder orchard has shown that many less green peaches are picked where this device is used.

BREAKAGE IN CANNING.

When breakage of jars occurs it is due to such causes as:

Overpacking jars. Corn, pumpkin, peas, lima beans and sweet potatoes swell or expand in processing. Do not fill the jars quite full of these products.

Placing cold jars in hot water, or vice versa. As soon as the jars are filled with hot sirup or hot water place immediately in the canner.

If top cracks during sterilization the wire bail was too tight.

In steam canner, having too much water in the canner. Water should not come above the platform.

Allowing cold draft to strike the jars when they are removed from the canner.

Having wire bail too tight, thus breaking the jars or glass tops when lever is forced down.

QUARTER BILLION BOND ISSUE FOR MILITARY MOVES

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, July 20.—Democratic congressional leaders today demanded from officials of the treasury department an estimate of the expenditures due to military movements on the Mexican border. The estimates will form the basis for legislation authorizing an issue of "war bonds" to cover the expenditures of the Mexican campaign.

Majority Leader Claude Kitchin submitted an informal request to Secretary McAdoo, seeking to determine just how much money has been spent and is likely to be spent on the maintenance of the soldiers in Mexico and on the border. The bond issue will be framed to cover all of these expenses from the time the recent "crisis" began until January 1 1917, or until the present militia organization is mustered out of the Federal service. Democratic congressional leaders, who have been figuring on a bond issue of $200,000,000 or $250,000,000 today were unable to make any definite estimate of the amount required.

The total of the bond issue will depend to a large extent upon the future course of the administration regarding Mexico. If the present military forces are kept on the border and General Funston maintains his border patrol throughout the year, a bond issue of half a billion may be necessary to supply the funds necessary to finance the campaign. If an agreement between the Carranza government and the United States does away with the necessity for military service, $200,000,000 may cover the expenses.

N. Y. DIVISION IN FINEST CONDITION

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, July 20.—Major General Tasker H. Bliss, assistant to the chief of staff of the army, who is making an inspection of the National Guard troops encamped along the border, reported to the war department today that conditions are satisfactory as far as the New York division is concerned. The only criticism regarding the New York troops, he reported, was that the same kind of food was being served too often. He said this was being rapidly remedied.

General Bliss reported as follows: "Finished inspection of New York division today. The division is comfortably sheltered, the command in excellent state of health, sick report being practically negligible. Camps are supplied with water from the water systems of adjacent towns. Water abundant in quantity and of excellent quality.

Sanitary condition of camps excellent with exception of temporary absence of bathing facilities which is being remedied as rapidly as possible. Regarding rations all commanding officers interviewed by me have stated that it is abundant in quantity and excellent in quality and that the only criticism for their men has been due to a monotony resulting from deficiency of certain components intended to give an agreeable variety. This has been due to necessity of heavily issuing principal components of ration in order to avoid shortage in food supply. Components necessary for proper variety in this climate are being supplied as rapidly as possible and I believe within few days criticism from this cause will be entirely obviated. I emphasize fact that rations issued from beginning of camps have been ample in quantity and excellent in quality. General sprit of contentment thus far is an indicated in my telegram of yesterday."

PRAISE PATRIOTS IN IRISH UPRISING

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Boston, July 20.—A solemn high mass of requiem for the repose of the souls of the deceased presidents of the Ancient Order of Hibernians and of the men executed by England for their part in the recent Irish uprising, was celebrated at St. James's Church today as a beginning of today's proceedings of the national A. O. H. convention.

Rev. P. J. Supple of the Church of St. John the Evangelist spoke briefly on the "Irish Martyrs." He said in part:

"These men gave their lives for their love of country, the cause they loved next to God himself. They were scholars and inoffensive men. They felt this was the only way in which the freedom of their country could be accomplished. What a principle in these days of selfishness, that these men have left us. They have taught a lesson such as had not been taught for generations. Their names will go down to posterity with the great martyrs. May it be a lesson to all of us."

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, July 20.—The stock market opened strong for the majority of the list today, but the improvements in prices were irregular, influenced by a break at the very outset in the marine issues, indirect reflection of the larger British tax than had been expected. The preferred opened from 85 to 84, against 88¾ at the close Wednesday. The common lost more than two points to 23½. By the end of the first fifteen minutes the preferred, after declining to 82¾, rallied to 84½. Willys-Overland, Reading and one or two other shares started fractionally lower.

Industrial Alcohol gained 2⅜ points in all to 114. Steel Common, after opening unchanged at 85⅜, receded to 85⅛. Studebaker gained ½ to 128¾, Colorado Fuel and Iron ¼ to 44⅛. American Locomotive ½ to 64½, Crucible Steel ¼ to 68¼, and Baldwin Locomotive ¼ to 70¾.

There was a show of strength in Butte and Superior, which rose to 67, against 65¾ at the close yesterday. Maxwell Motor, after opening at 77¾, dropped to 76¼ in the next few minutes, against 77⅛, the final price of Wednesday. Distillers Securities, which opened unchanged at 43⅝, rose to 44¼ on a few sales. Union Pacific, Anaconda and a few other issues showed losses of a quarter point.

Business in the late forenoon was narrow and price movements were generally toward lower levels. Marine Preferred, after selling at 81¾, rallied to 83. The common sold at 22, a loss of 3⅝ points. Steel Common reacted from 85½ to 84⅞. Studebaker from 128¾ to 127½, and Industrial Alcohol from 116½, to 113½. American Locomotive declined a point to 63½, and losses of from fractions to a point were recorded in Union Pacific, Willys-Overland, Westinghouse and Maxwell Motors. Tennessee Copper dropped to 24¾, against 26 earlier in the day. International Nickel lost 1½ to 44, Baldwin Locomotive and Crucible Steel held their opening gains. Aggressive "bear" selling was again in evidence. Money loaning at 2¼ per cent.

On the afternoon advances after recessions were numerous in many issues, including Lackawanna Steel, Pressed Steel Car, Kennicott Copper, International Nickel, Crucible Steel, and Baldwin Locomotive. American Beet Sugar and Goodrich Rubber suffered declines of about a point and Maxwell Motor and American Locomotive lost two points from their high levels. Studebaker sold down to 126¼. Industrial Alcohol rose to within two points of the highest figures of the day.

The market closed strong. Marine Preferred recovered about half of its early loss. Mexican Petroleum, Republican Iron and Steel and American Car and Foundry and a few others were features. Industrial Alcohol worked back to near the top of the day which was 4 points higher. Other gains ranged from fractions to around three points.

Government bonds unchanged; railway and other bonds quiet.

Leroy Evans, son of Mrs. Anna Evans of New Paltz, is reported to have caught a shark near the Atlantic Highlands.

MATHEWSON GOES TO MANAGE "REDS"

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Cincinnati, July 20.—President Hermann of the Reds at 12:15 p. m. today confirmed the deal with the Giants completed whereby Christy Mathewson comes to the Reds as manager together with Infielder McKechnie and Outfielder Rousch in exchange for Charles Herzog and Outfielder Killifer.

The amount of the salary to Mathewson will be fixed this afternoon, President Hermann says but he would not mention whether any cash bonus was to accompany the trade.

The negotiations in progress for weeks were in the balence yesterday when objections were made to Mathewson because of inexperience as an executive.

SOCIETY NOTES.

Entertained at Connelly.

Mrs. John Pardee and Mrs. Henry Myers entertained a number of Kingston residents on Wednesday and during the day a bountiful repast was spread upon the lawn and greatly enjoyed by all. Among those present were Mrs. Augustus Sanford of Philadelphia; Mrs. Ernest Boss, Mrs. E. V. Allen and son, George, and Mrs. James Davis of Kingston.

DuMond-Malcolm.

Mrs. Clara Malcolm of Broklyn, and George P. DuMond of Hurley, were quietly married on Wednesday evening at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Speers, No. 246 Clinton avenu, by the Rev. Mr. Durfee of Hurley. Only the members of the immediate families were present and Dr. and Mrs. Nash of Hurley.

Entertained at Shore Supper.

A number of young people from this city were royally entertained at Camp Moojohfen, near Legg's Mills, on Tuesday evening. The party consisted of the Misses Anna and Mayme Ryan, Sara Fennelly, Ella Murphy, Agnes Brennan and Catherine Humphrey, and the Messrs. Dan Brewster, Sam Saunders, Charles Brown, of Jersey City; Dennis Fennelly, George Daley and Will Ryan. The visitors were served with a delightful shore supper by Leo Fennelly, John Mooney and Luke Johnson, who will occupy Camp Moojohfen for at least two weeks.

Linen Shower a Surprise.

A most pleasant surprise in the form of a linen shower was given Miss Minerva Freedman Sunday evening at the home of Mrs. S. Beloff, 12 Green street, when a large number of friends from this city, New York and Philadelphia gathered and many beautiful gifts were presented. An entertaining program was carried out, vocal solos being rendered by Miss Rose Wolfe of Philadelphia and Miss Anna Affron of this city, and several clever recitations by Miss Anna Cassler. Dainty refreshments were served at a late hour after which the guests departed, wishing Miss Freedman a bright and happy future.

Folk at Goodyear Lake.

On the shores of Goodyear Lake, among the hills of Otsego county, is a pretty resting place, Thornapple Camp, locally known as "Hickey's Camp." A party of Kingston people are there to spend a few weeks and among their guests last week were Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Buckley, of 95 Downs street, who motored to the camp for a few days' outing. Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Lockwood of 279 Washington avenue also spent the week end at the camp, which is most comfortable, with a fine lawn, good spring water and plenty of fishing. Hot weather is an unknown quantity out there in Camp Hickey.

Everybody Helps Lawn Parties.

The lawn parties which are to be given this week Friday night and next week Friday night by the Federation of Women's Clubs, for the benefit of the needy families of Company M and the members of Company M itself, are arousing great interest, especially as through these two affairs many who wish to contribute, but cannot do so largely, will have their chance through attending the parties. Everything is now ready for tomorrow evening. Stock and Cordts have contributed the chairs and Gregory Company have contributed the tables for the party to be given on the grounds of Mr. and Mrs. James F. Dwyer on Broadway. The Kingston Gas and Electric Company will, free of charge, string electric lights on the grounds for both the downtown and uptown parties. This will add very materially to the charm of the affair. Today it was learned that the Kingston Symphony Society would furnish such music on both occasions as their greatly depleted numbers can make possible, for several of their men are members of the Tenth Regiment band. The apron booth will be in the summer house on the hill, which will be made gay with lights and American flags. Many aprons have already been contributed and there will be other fancy articles for sale none costing over 50 cents.

Remember, if the weather is stormy the party will be held the first pleasant night. Mrs. Powley, member of the Public Health committee of the Federation, chairman of the refreshment committee has lots of good homemade cakes and delicious ice cream provided, and the members of the Atharhacton Club will serve the refreshments which will cost 15 cents, and if this weather continues, ice cream and cake will surely be at a premium.

An Impossibility.

Patience—Did you ever try counting ten before speaking? Patrice—Yes; I tried it once, but I can't do it.

England's Oldest Port.

Falmouth is probably the oldest port in England. It was used by the Phoenicians at least 2,500 years ago.

CASH A CONSTANT NEED FOR RELIEF

Attention should be called to the fact that while more than $600 have been subscribed to the Civilian and Military Relief Funds of the Ulster County Branch of the Red Cross, there is nothing like that sum on hand as the moneys are being constantly paid out for the objects of these respective branches.

The Civilian Relief is looking forward to a liberal response on the part of Kingston people who are given an opportunity to dance for the benefit of the dependents of Company M tonight at the Kingston Point Casino.

The funds today are as follows:

GREETINGS FROM CINCINNATI.

Rotary Club Dinner Hears From Delegate Pardee.

The regular monthly banquet of the Rotary Club of Kingston was held at Hotel Eichler on Wedneday evening and was well attended. The speaker of the evening was the Rev. T. H. Bargwanath, pastor of St. James M. E. Church, who spoke on the aims and motives of the organization. A. D. Pardee, secretary, and delegate to the International Rotary Clubs convention in session at Cincinnati, Ohio, sent greetings. New members who were introduced were Charles R. O'Connor and Dr. Charles D. Carter. The event was one of the most enjoyable held by the club.

FISHED WITHOUT A PERMIT.

Two Ashokan Reservoir Anglers Are Guilty of Trespass.

Homer Burger of the town of Shandaken and Otis Bogart of the town of Olive were sued before Justice of the Peace Chapman at Ashokan on Wednesday for trespass, in fishing in the Ashokan reservoir without first having obtained a permit from the city of New York, as required. The proceedings were taken by the city of New York, which asked nominal damages. Judgment was rendered against each defendant for fifty cents and in view of the fact that the men are laborers, Justice Chapman reduced his costs to seventy-five cents in each case. William H. Grogan appeared for the city of New York.

Permits are required in order to fish in the Ashokan reservoir. To obtain a permit it is necessary to make application on a blank provided by the Board of Water Supply, and to accompany the application when properly filled out with $5 for a single permit or $6 for a permit good for a man and his wife. The permit is good for the season and the money is returned when the permit is surrendered. The deposit is required as an evidence of good faith. A large number of Kingstonians as well as residents of the Ashokan region have obtained fishing permits.

A large number of members of L. A. A. O. H., Division No. 5, gave a pleasant surprise Tuesday evening for their sister member, Theresa M. Hohman, who on returning home from a walk with her friend, Mrs. M. Parks, was astonished and delighted to find a large number of friends to greet her. A very pleasant evening was spent with music, songs and recitations, one of the features being a solo by Mrs. Hohman herself and a clever little recitation by Miss Stella Gleason of West New York. Refreshments were served after which County President Sara V. Joyce in a few well chosen words presented Mrs. Hohman with a solid gold emblem pin. All departed at a late hour bidding farewell to Mrs. Hohman and wishing her and her husband every success in their new home, as they leave town in a few days for Freeport where Mr. Hohman has secured a lucrative position.

Blames Fruit for Spread.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Blackington, Mass., July 20.—William Gallon, Jr., 3 years old, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Gallon of Brooklyn, N. Y., died today here of infantile paralysis. His sister died from the same cause two days ago. Acting on the conviction that infantile paralysis germs are spread by fruits and vegetables, Judge Samuel Brown Tenny of Williamstown has issued an order prohibiting all peddlers from selling their wares within his jurisdiction.

BRITISH ADVANCE LINES IN PICARDY

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

London, July 20.—Further success has been won by the British troops in their renewed offensive against the Germans in Picardy. The fighting has been extended farther northward of the Somme. Australian troops having successfully raided the enemy's front for a distance of two miles and taken 140 prisoners near Armentieres.

At Longueval and in Delville Wood the British have recaptured more of the ground which the Germans regained in their recent counter attacks. The British have also advanced northward of Longueval and Bazentin.

LA FOLLETTE SEES GIGANTIC SCHEME

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, July 20.—Charging that the whole preparedness program is the product of a gigantic commercial scheme backed by the big moneyed interests, Senator LaFollette of Wisconsin renewed his attack on the naval bill in the senate today.

"There isn't any reason now for doubling the military and naval expenses of the country that didn't exist twelve months ago," he declared.

Insurance Policy Suit.

The action brought by Mrs. Mary Tubby against the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company was tried in city court this morning before Recorder Lang, acting city judge. The action is brought to recover on an insurance policy issued on her mother, Mrs. Taylor, of Saugerties. The amount of the policy is $135. The insurance company refused to pay the policy on the grounds that it was issued to the brother, and also allege that certain false statements were made when the policy was issued. This is denied by Mrs. Tubby and she claims that the brother turned the policy over to her. The brother left town about a year ago. Judge N. Frank O'Reilly appeared for Mrs. Tubby, while Mayor Canfield represented the insurance company. Judge Lang reserved decision.

Gypsies Come And Go.

A band of Gypsies invaded Kingston this afternoon crossing over on the Transport from Rhinebeck. Word of their arrival was telephoned to police headquarters and also to the health board. Drs. Johnston and Clarke of the health board and Sergeant Murray and a detail of police escorted the band out of town. The Gypsies left going by way of Ponckhockie and out through East Kingston.

"Swat The Fly" His Motto.

N. H. Yeager, station agent at Modena, was bitten on the chin by a fly recently and blood poisoning immediately followed. He came to Gardiner to have the trouble remedied by Dr. M. E. Stephens. Mr. Yeager last year was stung in the hand by a bee and such a bad case of blood-poisoning developed that at one time it was thought the member would have to be amputated.—Gardiner Weekly.

Poisoning as a Diversion.

Poisoning is never likely again to become a fashionable diversion, as it was from time to time in ancient Rome. In B. C. 331, for instance, there was a mysterious pestilence which seemed to be particularly fatal to leading men. At last a slave girl gave information to the authorities, and a consequent police raid resulted in the discovery of about twenty matrons, some of them of high patrician families, busily preparing drugs over a fire. They insisted that the drugs were not poisonous, but, being compelled to drink them publicly in the forum as a guarantee of good faith, perished miserably. Further informations followed, and 170 matrons in all were condemned. But this record was soundly beaten in B. C. 184, when a four months' inquiry by the praetor is said to have led to the condemnation of 2,000 persons.

Ups and Downs.

Not every statesman takes his dismissal with the humor of the Duc d'Epernon, who fell into disgrace with Henry of Navarre. Descending one day the great staircase of the Louvre, he met Richelieu ascending it, and on the cardinal asking indifferently if there was anything new taking place D'Epernon replied, "Nothing, except that, as you see, I am going down and you are going up!" Mr. Bloundelle Burton tells the story in "The Fate of Henry of Navarre."

DODGING THE BOMB

Easy to Sidestep a Missile Flung From a Zeppelin.

SIMPLE RULES FOR SAFETY.

Provided a Person Can Sight the Airship Before It Gets in Its Work, Dashing Out of Its Range Is Merely a Matter of Seconds and Agility.

There are well defined rules for the avoidance of Zeppelin bombs. These rules, it seems, depend upon the laws of spherical perspective, and however esoteric and complicated the calculations upon which they are based the actual practice of bomb dodging is relatively simple and easy to master.

When a "Zep" is sighted in the offing the first thing to do is to determine its course. This is done as follows: If it appears to be standing on end and is practically vertical you are, leaving out of account any cross wind there may be, pretty nearly in its path and should get ready to run to right or left—that is, at right angles to the course it is pursuing. Even if you are directly in its path there is no danger from the bombs except when it is nearly over your head.

And because the bomb takes a very considerable time to reach the earth (probably twenty-five seconds when the Zep is at an altitude of a mile) you will have a reasonable time to "sidestep" it even after seeing it start. But any one who can't run a hundred yards, which is about the limit of the destructiveness of one of these missiles, in twenty-five seconds, especially with the stimulus of a bomb chasing him, hasn't very much excuse for not being blown up in this athletic age.

If, on the other hand, the Zep when sighted appears to be tipped one way or the other—that is, its front or upper end points to the left or right—you are in no danger and can watch its destructive fireworks without any of the unpleasant thrills associated with the peril of imminent death. If the bow appears inclined to the left the vessel will pass to the left, and if tipped the other way, of course, to the right. Some allowance, however, must be made for cross winds, as these great, unwieldy bags have a very considerable side drift.

It is said to be usually easy to make these observations by means of the unaided eye with sufficient accuracy to protect oneself. But in case the Zep should appear very close to an upright position it may help the observer to get into a place where the vessel is partially covered by the edge of a house, a flagpole or other vertical line. If the Zep appears to be climbing the edge of the house or the flagpole toward the zenith the observer is likely to have an immediate personal interest in its visit. In case there is no house or flagpole available a plumb line made by a stone tied to a string will serve the same purpose.

By following these few simple rules, says Professor E. C. Pickering, there is little excuse for any one on the lookout and able to get about with reasonable speed being caught by either a Zeppelin or an aeroplane bomb.

It may be of interest while on the subject to make a few abstracts from the description by a British scientific observer of the fall of these bombs:

"The bombs could be heard approaching as they rushed through the air. The whistling noise—a little like the tearing of calico or the noise made by a gigantic rocket—became a crescendo shriek of terrific intensity just before the bomb struck the ground and the explosion occurred. I estimated the height of the Zeppelin as about 4,000 feet, and, neglecting air resistance, this would give the bombs a final velocity of about 500 feet per second. The actual speed was probably less than this and is considerably less than the velocity of sound (1,100 feet per second), which accounts for the fact that the bombs can be heard before their arrival.

"Standing, as I was, at about 200 yards from where one of the bombs fell the noise of the actual explosion did not appear to be very loud. The reason is probably to be sought in the almost complete numbing of one's senses. The feeling was much the same as if one had been given a hard blow between the eyes with a bolster or some relatively soft object. I heard a piece of bomb 'zip' past me and afterward found it imbedded in a balk of timber about two yards from where I was standing."

Upon the explosion of the bombs a huge cloud of black smoke rose into the air. The destruction caused in their immediate neighborhood showed a curious freakishness. The worst harm was done in what appeared to be pockets of high pressure extending out in various directions, but apart from the possibility of being struck by flying missiles the danger zone did not much exceed twenty-five yards.—New York Post.

M'CORD RECEIVER MADE ACCOUNTING

Long-Contested Matter Finally Wound Up Before Judge Jenkins—Savings Bank Book Litigation Figured in Proceeding.

A final accounting was had before Judge Jenkins at county court chambers this morning in the matter of the accounting of James T. O'Reilly as receiver of James McCord, and with the payment of the surplus moneys in the hands of the receiver, the balance of the funds in his hands, amounting to about $300, will be turned over to Lawyer John D. Eckert, on whose application the receiver was appointed.

McCord and his wife had saved about $500 which they deposited in the Rondout Savings Bank, when Casper Michels obtained a judgment against McCord in 1902 for $397.50. The judgment was for moneys loaned to McCord and for goods supplied to him in the form of liquors. When McCord was sued he confessed judgment in the city court. Casper Michels was unable to collect the judgment and assigned it to Mr. Eckert, who applied for the appointment of a receiver. The late Henry E. Wieber was appointed receiver but died before he collected any money and James T. O'Reilly was later appointed in his place.

About the time of O'Reilly's appointment as receiver, the late Lawyer G. R. Adams secured possession of the bank book under an agreement which he alleged was made with Mrs. McCord that he should act as trustee of the fund in the savings bank and out of it pay the sick and funeral expenses of both Mrs. McCord and her husband. The case dragged its way through the courts for a number of years, and recently was finally decided by the court of appeals, which affirmed a decision and judgment rendered by Judge Hasbrouck, who held that the savings bank had been in error in paying over the money to Lawyer Adams and that it should pay it to Receiver O'Reilly. The amount of the judgment against the savings bank is $814.44, and the bank has paid its judgment. The Casper Michels judgment, which was assigned to Lawyer Eckert, now amounts, with interest, costs, etc., to $729.50. The account of Receiver O'Reilly shows that he has on hand for distribution the sum of $471.30. After deducting expenses, etc., the balance, amounting to about $300, will come into the possession of Lawyer Eckert to apply on his judgment.

At this morning's hearing, Receiver O'Reilly was represented by his brother, Judge N. Frank O'Reilly; Lawyer Eckert appeared in person and DeWitt Roosa appeared for the Savings Bank.

Disliked Flower Beds.

John Ryan, a stranger, arrested by Policeman Hess on Wednesday evening on a charge of public intoxication, this morning was arraigned before Recorder Lang. From the story told by uptown residents Ryan trampled into flower gardens on uptown side streets, went up on the porches of houses and hurled porch furniture off, and in general made a nuisance of himself. The recorder sentenced him to the county jail for thirty days.

ONE-LEGGED VILLA CAN MOVE RAPIDLY

Mexico City Reports Bandit's Capture May be Expected Hourly While El Paso Tells of His Fierce Warriors Closing in on Chihuahua City.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Mexico City, July 20.—Announcement was made at the war office today that Francisco Villa had been located and that his capture at an early date was probable. A messenger from Villa, it was stated, had been intercepted at Chihuahua City, whither he had gone to seek Japanese doctors who would give medical aid to his first chief. According to the story told by the captured messenger, Villa has had one of his legs amputated.

Four divisions of cavalry, the war office stated, had been immediately sent out in an endeavor to capture Villa, who is believed here to have a small chance of escape.

Official opinion here is that all danger of international complications will cease with the capture of Villa, it being an easy matter to deal with other bandits.

The suggestion that Mexico secure a large loan in the United States is finding much favor in Mexico.

Overcharging by merchants is generally attributed to the unstable currency.

Rumors are current in official circles that there will be important developments in connection with the treasury in a few days. Minister of Finance Cabrera said today that the money question alone was troubling the government, adding that if the proposed Mexican-American peace conference resulted in this country securing a foreign loan, the whole situation would become satisfactory.

It was intimated that if American interests were unwilling to make a loan financial assistance had been promised from other quarters.

Fanatical Frenzy Noticed.

El Paso, Tex., July 20—"Pancho" Villa's fierce warriors, fighting with all the fanatical frenzy that is inspired by their renegade chieftain, closed in on Chihuahua City today.

An advance band far to the north and west of Carranza's northern headquarters city severed the government's line of communication late yesterday and today the border expected hourly that the actual attack on Chihuahua City had been started.

For the past week, according to the stories told by refugees, wounded Carranzistas have been straggling into Chihuahua City. Every force sent by General Jacinto Trevino to check the onward rush of the Villista force has either disappeared completely or has been thrown back, cut to pieces and routed.

The latest squad of wounded arriving reported Villa only ten miles from the city. Groups of Villa's wild horsemen have appeared in the hills within sight of Chihuahua City. Carranza cavalry has been sent to drive them off. The last cavalry outfit that went into the hills after a Villa band has not yet returned.

Will Sack the City.

The Carranza entrenchments along the San Pedro river on the edge of Chihuahua City have been fired on by other companies of Villa's command.

The remarkable mobility of Villa's forces has always made them unique military problems. With Villistas on four sides of Chihuahua City Trevino would have his hands full with defense even if the majority of Chihuahua's residents were not Villistas and ready to make trouble on the inside with the approach of their chosen leader.

So swift has been the progress of his fighting men that Villa himself is said to have come from his headquarters on the Rio Florida bottoms to lead the attack on Chihuahua City. He threatened to do this in his latest communication to General Trevino. At that time he also warned Trevino that he would sack the city and execute all Carranzista officers.

Pershing Withdrawal.

That Villa is with the foremost of his troops was reported by the wounded Carranzistas straggling back from Palomas, where Martin Lopez led a Villista band in an attack on a Carranza troop train. Martin Lopez is a brother of Pablo Lopez. Villa's chief villain at Santa Ysabel and Columbus. Pablo recently was executed in Chihuahua City and Martin, it is believed, will be given the honor of leading the first Villista outfit into the city where his brother died.

In the face of the Villistas unchecked advance, the border hears of the renewed demands of Don Venustiano Carranza that the Pershing expedition be withdrawn.

Militiamen continue to arrive in the El Paso district and before the mobilization ends it is reported that 70,000 of them will be encamped here.

From the Sonora end of the border come fresh reports of the activities of the Yaquis. General Calles is understood to have failed to suppress the Indian warriors.

HANLEY AND SULZER IN BATTLE ROYAL

Probition Nomination Lies Between Former Governors and Adherents Are Working Hard For Both—Religious Row Breaks in Platform Committee.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

St. Paul, Minn., July 20.—The stage was set here today for a battle royal between the Hanly and Sulzer forces for the Prohibition presidential nomination. Leaders completed their plans for the hurried adoption of a party platform at the forenoon session of the convention, nominations and a quick adjournment.

The day gave early promise of being one of fireworks. Mr. Sulzer was scheduled to arrive during the morning and make a Rooseveltian descent on the convention in an attempt to stampede it into nominating him.

The Sulzer adherents seemed confident that under the oratory of the former New York goveror their clan would snatch the plum from Hanly at the eleventh hour.

Against this plan of procedure, however, the entire administration of the party was set, although admittedly it could not prevent Mr. Sulzer from addressing the delegates. The Hanly forces claimed that they already had pledged more than enough votes to put their candidate over and no matter how dramatic maneuvering Sulzer did, J. Frank Hanly of Indianawould head the ticket.

Religious Clash Imminent.

An intenseley bitter fight broke out in the platform committee meeting over the world-old question of religion. The committee decided to throw a veil of secrecy about the proceedings and summarily banished all reporters from the room.

The ill-feeling has been smouldering for several days over the activities of anti-Catholic workers in behalf of Sulzer. The agents wanted a plank inserted in the platform declaring it to be the sense of this convention that the church and state be separated entirely and the row started.

Chairman Patton called the convention to order while the platform committee still wrestled with the religious controversy.

The session opened with the singing of the "Star Spangled Banner."

Many delegates were missing. The Rev. Mrs. Varney of Pennsylvania asked for divine guidance to the White House this year and expressed the hope that all Progressives and suffragists would unite under the Prohibition banner.

The proceedings dragged during the first hour and singing was resorted to to kill time.

Much merriment and some indignation was occasioned by the reading of a telegram from C. C. Warren of Hinsdale, Ill., advising the convention to "nominate Hughes and win."

One Swallow Makes Hit.

Mrs. Florence Hyde, executive secretary of the Chicago Woman's National Prohibition Federation, made her official report to the convention. Organization of women, she said, was being perfected in all states.

A telegram endorsing the candidacy of William Sulzer was received from Dr. Silas Swallow, who bore the party standard in 1904.

The credentials committee reported that 730 delegates have been seated in the convention—only a few more than half the accredited number.

William Sulzer arrived shortly before noon "in the hands of his friends." He did not appear in the convention during the forenoon session.

K. E. DAVIS.

COLLEGE ON ATHLETIC MAP.

The dream of Karl E. Davis, graduate manager of the University of Pittsburgh, comes true this fall when his college puts into force the rule barring freshmen from the varsity teams.

Before the advent of Davis, the University of Pittsburgh was almost unknown in an athletic way outside its own immediate territory. Now Pittsburgh ranks among the foremost in the land. It's football team of 1914—the first year of the Davis regime—lost but one game. Last season, Pittsburgh started the football world by winning everyone of its gridiron games and tying Cornell for the football championship of East.

"Let's be clean and sportsmanlike in everything we do," has been Davis's motto; and he lived up to it. He became graduate manager of the Pittsburgh at a time when it was the target of sport writers; when it was assured of being a college that played "ringers." But no such accusation has been made since the day that Karl Davis began to handle the athletic reins at Pittsburgh.

The adoption of the freshman rule is the last step in Pittsburgh's march to a foremost position in the realm of amateur sports.

Last season the Pitt baseball, basketball and track and field teams, followed in the triumphant wake of the footballers. They played in superb fashion and finished the season with great records.

Oh, yes, the coaches and the players were responsible for a large measure of the success of the Pitt teams, but to Davis goes the credit for making the national triumphs possible. Before Davis came Pitt scheduled most of its game with the "small fry" colleges.

"Let's go out after the big boys," said Davis. "We can beat them."

And Pittsburgh did. Davis scheduled games with Cornell, Annapolis, Pennsylvania, Carlisle and other big colleges, whereupon Pitt went right out and pummeled each and every one handily.

Out in Pittsburgh, where they know Davis best, they give him the full credit that is due; they call him "the Moses of Pitt;" the man who led them into the Promised Land of Athletic supremacy.

True "Native Son."

He was an enthusiast, even for a native son, and shortly after his arrival in New York he found himself in the midst of a group of men who were in a belated discussion of Halley's comet. He could not miss a chance to get in a good word for the dear old coast. "What," he exclaimed, "Halley's comet here? Pshaw! But you should have seen that thing from San Francisco."

GRAND CIRCUIT TO BRING FAST ONES

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., July 20.—It is eight years since the Hudson River Valley has been favored by a Grand Circuit Trotting meeting. But at the Hudson River Driving Park, Poughkeepsie, from August 28th to September 2nd next, for a whole week, this sport of kings is to be revived. That horse trotting is come back into its own is proven by the immense success of the opening of the Grand Circuit Campaign at Cleveland this week. Monday last showed a record first day attendance, keen contests and fast time.

Tommy Murphy, the greatest of drivers, who trains his horses on the Poughkeepsie track, made the sensational incident of the day when he drove Tramfast, a winner in three straight heats in 2:09—the first event of the first day.

Another winner of Monday, which will be seen at Poughkeepsie in August, was Mary Coburn, who was bred by Viola Allen, the actress, and owned by the Pastime Stables, Cleveland. Her time was 2:10¼.

The Poughkeepsie track is being put in first class shape for the big events of next month when purses aggregating thousands of dollars will be contested for. The early closing list shows but very few declarations and the late closing events are about to be arranged.

Poughkeepsie will be the Mecca for auto parties during the Grand Circuit meeting, but the city is amply able to care for the day crowds which will fill her streets, hotels and restaurants.

S. Hughes.

MENKE'S DAILY SPORTING LETTER

(By Frank G. Menke.)

New York, July 20.—"Sunny Jim" Dunn is smiling the smile that won't come off.

He's the fellow, y'no, who paid out something like $425,000 for the Cleveland Indians during the none too gentle springtime while the "wise ones" exuded such remarks as "the poor boob," "Barnum was right," and kindred sentiments.

And right now Jim Dunn owns the club that has outdrawn every other outfit in the majors: a club that has been in the pennant fight from the start of the season, and shows no sign of cracking.

Dunn's successful plunge into the diamond game reads more like a tale of fiction than a plain statement of facts.

Charlie Somers, as you may recollect, owned the Indians—the joke team of the Johnsonian circuit in 1915. On paper, and on the ball field, it looked like one of the worst collection of misfits in existence. Somers wanted to keep his club, but the bankers who took charge of his affairs, decided that the team must be sold.

Dunn Buys "Gold Brick."

For a long time no one made a real offer for the club. Who wanted a team that looked like a certain tail-ender for years to come? Who wanted to gamble with an outfit that had lost close to $100,000 in 1915, at least half that sum in 1914, and corresponding losses in most of the other years. Who wanted the Indians? No one—except James Dunn, of Chicago.

When the hoi-polloi found that Dunn's offer for connection with the diamond game had been in the capacity of spectator, it right away predicted bankruptcy for the Chicagoan.

"Maybe—and maybe not," was Dunn's comment. "Maybe I'll lose money, but I have a hunch that I'm going to win. I'll apply business methods to baseball. I'm going to get the very best men I can, no matter what the cost, and I'm going to give Cleveland the best ball club it has had in some time."

Venture Costs $500,000.

Whereupon, Dunn startled the baseball world still more by paying $55,000 in cash, and throwing in two players as "to boot" for Tris Speaker, the outfielding star of the Red Sox. Dunn instructed his manager, Lee Fohl, to grab off any other players he could get and "doggone the cost."

Whereupon, the baseball sharps, mentioned the name of Dunn, and tapped ther own domes and murmured "empty," to indicate that they felt Jim Dunn was somewhat minus in brain equipment.

When the 1915 season opened, Dunn balanced up his books and found that his dive into baseball had cost him approximately a half million; $425,000 for the original roster of players, the franchise, stands, and playing field; $55,000 for Speaker, and about $20,000 for other players.

"And now we will see what shall be seen," said Dunn.

Dunn Harvests Golden Crop.

And this is what fandom, to its utter amazement, has seen during the first three months of the campaign:

The Indians, in less than 30 home games have drawn close to—400,000 paid admissions—almost three times as many home town fans as paid to see them perform in their 77 home games last season.

On the road the Indians have outdrawn every other club in the circuit. The paid admissions at their on-the-road games has been in the neighborhood of 400,000. The crowds that have been turning out to see the Indians perform during the past month has been increasingly larger than they were earlier in the year. Baseball sharps at last have concluded that the Indians really must be considered seriously in the bunting fight, and a pennant battler always "pulls" well.

Right now the Indians' share of the gate money, both on the road and at home, has more than cleared the entire operating and overhead expenses for the season. From now on every dollar that rolls into the Cleveland club coffers will be velvet for the game Chicagoan who took a long chance and—won.

No matter what the Indians do from now on until the end of the season, Dunn will make a nice profit. Should the club remain in the fight until the end of the season, it means big crowds everywhere and, at a most conservative estimate, Dunn will clear between $100,000 and $150,000. Should the Indians grab the pennant and a split of the world series Dunn's net profits for the year will be between $150,000 and $200,000.

And, in the meantime, Jim Dunn smiles his sunny smile, and murmurs, good-naturedly:

"Who's a boob?"

TAKE A SHOT FOR COMPANY M.

Shooting Gallery at Point to Give Tonight's Receipts.

To help swell the Civilian Relief Fund for the benefit of Company M, William W. Miller, proprietor of the shooting gallery at Kingston Point Park, will donate his receipts for this evening. As there will be a large attendance at the Point this evening to attend the benefit dance, many will doubtless take advantage of the opportunity to test their ability in the shooting line and will no doubt liberally patronize Mr. Miller.

M. H. Diamond, who runs the "patty pan" concession, has also kindly offered to donate one-half his receipts tonight to swell the fund.

Example Counts.

A good fight is never for its day alone—it is for many days; and it is not alone for him who bears its utmost stress. No man can live his own life bravely and quietly and not be an energy of social good, virtue proceeding from him to heal some brother's wounded heart.

Hot Liners.

(By Frank G. Menke.)

If the Yankees can win with a bunch of cripples, what will they do when they have a real team. The Browns were given a double-barreled defeat.

The Red Sox refuse to let the Yankees have any advantage. They tore the Tigers to pieces in both games.

The White Sox must still be considered. They broke even with the Nationals.

The Indians found the easy picking in Philadelphia.

The Giants won from the Cubs in a wild base running, tattered fielding and poor pitching contest.

The Dodgers got an awful shock when the Pirates jolted them in both games.

The Braves gained a little ground when they took the Cardinals in tow.
